Chicken Thieves Were "Choosey"

n't Want White Leghorn Fowls and Avoided Watchdogs—Traveled Far and Wide by Automobile—Prisoners To Be Sentenced Monday.

Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock dge Russell sitting in Supreme rt will sentence several prisoners o entered pleas of guilty on being raigned Friday afternoon under in- tments handed up by the grand y. In six of the indictments pleas guilty were entered and in the six dictments found against Oliver rk and Warren B. Robinson for icken stealing the pleas were divid- d; in some of the indictments they ered pleas of guilty while in others y decided to plead not guilty. In e case of Henry Bunch, grand lar- y, second degree, he entered a plea not guilty.

In eight cases investigated by the nd jury no bills of indictment re found and the defendants who re in jail were discharged by the rt and in the other four cases here the defendant was on bail the il bond was ordered canceled. The llowing were the dismissals:

Eleanor Golden, assault, second de- ee.

Elizabeth Piggi, larceny, second de- ee.

Lucille Taylor, larceny, second de- ee. She was in jail.

Lorenzo Cunningham, alien pos- sing firearms. A jail case.

Nelson Brodhead, selling mort- ged property.

Tony Pallo, slot machine.

Myrtle Williams, burglary and un- wful entry. She was in jail.

Ralph Palmatier, burglary and un- wful entry. He was in jail.

The two latter cases in which no in- tments were found were cases in hich the two were held in connec- on with the chicken stealing alleged have been conducted by York and obinson. Miss Williams and Palma- er were along on at least one of the ips out into the country when chick- ns were stolen.

The apprehension of York and obinson by the State Troopers is ex- ected to put to a stop much of the icken stealing which had been go- g on in southern Ulster for some me past. It is believed that York d Robinson traveling by automobile overed several coops in a night and ere responsible for the disappear- nce of many choice fowls, mostly of e larger variety which would find uick sale on the market. That the ieves were well acquainted with the rritory in which they operated was own by the fact that seldom was a rm visited where the farmer had a ood watchdog or where nothing but hite leghorn fowls were kept.

York and Robinson are charged ith having stolen chickens at the own of Marlborough on December 3, t Shawangunk on November 26, at he town of Plattekill at the Gillespie lace on the same date, at the Horn- eck place in the town of New Paltz n the same date and also at the ierce farm on the same night and on ecember 1 at the Hall place in the own of Esopus.

York, Robinson, Myrtle Williams nd Ralph Palmatier were all placed nder arrest by Sergeant Lockhart of he State Troopers after an investi- ation of the various chicken stealing novements. This is the first wholesale nicken stealing operation which has ome to the attention of the authori- ies in some time and in all several undred fowls were taken.

On being arraigned in court both ntered pleas of guilty to the first in- ictment but when charged with the econd offense they changed their lans and entered pleas of not guilty. o the remaining four indictments ork entered pleas of not guilty while obinson pleaded guilty. An amus- g incident happened when Judge ussell inquired whether the men had een together on the night of Novem- er 25 and Robinson said they had een together although one entered a lea of guilty and the other not guil- y.

A resolution commending District ttorney Traver and Assistant Dis- rict Attorney Murray and praising he sheriff and his assistants for the xcellent care given the county prop- rty was filed with the report of the rand jury and ordered made a part f the court record.

A sealed verdict will be handed up Monday afternoon in the negligence ction brought by Major O. Ray Hilte- rant against the H. C. Roulston, nc., trucking company which was oncluded late Friday afternoon.

Star of Screen And Stage Dies

Los Angeles, Dec. 15 (AP).—Theodore Roberts, beloved actor who devoted nearly a lifetime to the stage and screen, died unexpectedly here yesterday afternoon. He became seriously ill two weeks ago, just after concluding his final film, "Noisy Neighbors."

Roberts, whose long career as a Thespian earned him the title of "The grand old man of the stage and screen," was born in San Francisco in 1861. The stage claimed him in 1880 after he had taught elocution for a time in the bay city. His first appearance was with James O'Neill in "Richelieu."

He made his professional entry into New York with Fanny Davenport. Later he was associated there with other noted players, including May Robson and William H. Crane. Among his best efforts were characterizations of "Svengali" in "Trilby;" "Simon Legree" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and "Tabywana" in "The Squaw Man." Other stage productions in which he appeared included "The Right of Way," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Concession," "Diplomacy," "Hamlet" and "Barrier."

Roberts' screen appearance in "Grumpy" "The Old Homestead" and "The Ten Commandments" were among the outstanding ones.

Decorations on Uptown Streets

The decorations on the uptown streets are rapidly being completed and the streets present a very attractive Christmas appearance. On each of the poles in the uptown shopping district evergreen trees have been erected and on the store fronts small trees have been placed. These trees on the buildings are lighted at night by many colored lights. The decoration scheme was worked out and adopted by the Uptown Business Men's Association.

On the court house lawn a large community tree has been erected and this tree will be lighted with many colored lights with a large star at the top. Large signs reading "Merry Christmas" are being placed at several points of entry to the uptown business district and one will be erected at Wall and John streets.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Prince George, youngest son of the King of Great Britain, was on his way home aboard the Cunarder Berengaria today after a 10-hour visit to New York.

During his stay the British prince did what most visitors to the city do—visited the Woolworth tower, Bronx Park Zoo, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

He was brought to New York from Bermuda by the British cruiser Durban, aboard which he has been serving as a junior lieutenant for several months.

He will finish his 4,500-mile trip, if the Berengaria runs to schedule, December 20, his 26th birthday.

Great Interest In Local Concerts

Committee Reports Nearly 400 Members Have Enrolled in Community Concert Association—Campaign Will Be Continued.

In reply to numerous inquiries and because of a whole-hearted desire to make the Community Concert Association a practical reality, it is a pleasure for the committee to report that already nearly four hundred members are enrolled. This means the total is within one-quarter of the minimum.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth was present at the meeting on Thursday afternoon, December 13, at Kingston Y. M. C. A., following an enthusiastic assembly at the New Paltz Normal. The Kingston meeting was well attended. One pleasing report of interest to the public was that there is no deficit of the Ulster County Musical Association.

Thursday's meeting brought the first report of memberships and does not represent a final report. A number of promising reports are yet to come in. A renewed effort is being made and new members being energetically sought. This is a community project and will add to cultural and community life.

On the conservative basis of 500 members, four outstanding events are guaranteed. Quality rather than quantity has governed the selection. These four events are the famous English Singers, the Flonzaley String Quartet of international renown, and a noted soloist, (A singer seems preferred. The one most in demand, and in keeping with budget, will be selected). Last but not least in popularity is a request program which Dr. Spaeth has consented to give. It is not a lecture, but a unique entertainment called "America's History in Popular Song," illustrated with slides.

To enable as large a number as possible to join the association, the New Paltz Normal and schools in Kingston and surrounding towns have been given until December 21st to complete enrollment. The same privilege is extended to the community. To enroll a total of 1,000 members within the next week is not an impossibility for Kingston and surrounding communities.

Application for membership should be made now, either through response to personal solicitation or by mail to John C. Porter, Secretary, at Y. M. C. A., Kingston, N. Y. Remittances may accompany application. Checks should be made payable to Harry S. Ensign, treasurer.

UNDER NO OBLIGATION FOR UNORDERED MERCHANDISE.

New York, Dec. 15.—Following complaints from the public and local merchants in various sections of the country that people are being flooded with unordered merchandise sent on approval by firms in other cities, the National Better Business Bureau has issued a statement advising the public that they are legally under no obligation to accept such material, return it, or pay for it unless it is used.

"The recipient of unordered merchandise is under no liability to return the goods or notify the sender they have been received even though an addressed and stamped envelope or carton came with them," the statement says.

"The holder of unordered Christmas cards and goods should give them a certain degree of care, but they need be held only a reasonable length of time during which the sender may instruct a qualified agent to call for them. If the agent does call within a reasonable length of time, the holder has the right to demand payment of storage charges before turning the goods over.

"On the other hand, if the recipient does use them he cannot legally avoid paying for them by saying that they came into his hands without his order."

DUCE'S PLEA FOR MORE ITALIANS IS ANSWERED

Rome, Dec. 15 (AP).—Triplets and twins have driven Premier Mussolini into taciturnity.

Hitherto it has been the Duce's pleasing custom to send an autographed picture of himself to parents who presented the Fatherland with a pair or three of a kind. In one month, however, Rome reported two sets of triplets, while Brescia, Florence and Foggia announced one each. Twins have become so common that no further score is kept of them.

Premier Mussolini ordered a general circular sent to all provinces setting forth that requests for his photograph could no longer be honored.

BALDWIN'S GREETING IS MOSS COVERED PROVERB

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Christmas cards which Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin is sending to his friends this year bears in his handwriting in facsimile the phrase:

"May God, good will and good neighborhood be your company."

Mr. Baldwin first heard the phrase from an old woman, who thus greeted him while he was on a country walk in his native country of Worcestershire. The prime minister believes the saying probably is of Elizabethan origin, handed down by word of mouth from generation to generation by the country folk of his county.

King George Improves After Disturbed Day

Succeeds In Getting a Number of Hours Sleep and Emerges With Steady Pulse and Without Further Exhaustion—Bulletin Regarded as Satisfactory.

London, Dec. 15 (AP)—King George, worn by his long and trying battle with illness, today was still struggling bravely for a new foothold of life.

His Majesty had something of a setback yesterday after his ordeal of Wednesday, when two operations were performed for the removal of purulent fluid from the base of the right lung. Yesterday was a disturbed day, but the King succeeded in getting a number of hours sleep last night and emerged today with a steady pulse and without further exhaustion.

This morning's bulletin, which served to alleviate somewhat the dismay felt last night, was as follows:

"The King has had several hours sleep. The local condition is so far satisfactory. There is no increase in the exhaustion and the pulse remains steady."

It was indicated in palace circles this morning that today's bulletin was regarded as satisfactory. It was held to confirm the view taken last night that the somewhat less reassuring bulletin then issued merely indicated one of those temporary setbacks which were to be expected in the course of the ebb and flow of the King's long and difficult struggle.

The fact that His Majesty was able to obtain several hours sleep was pointed to as a favorable sign, while continuation of the steady pulse coupled with a slight improvement in the local condition which the bulletin mentioned was regarded as reassuring.

Symptoms Appeared Four Weeks Ago

It was just four weeks ago today, on Saturday, November 17, that the first symptoms of the King's illness appeared. During all that time his progress has been followed with the closest sympathy by his subjects. Today there was a considerable crowd on hand at the palace gates for the posting of the morning bulletin. There was anxiety among the spectators not only because of last night's rather unfavorable bulletin but also because the doctors had delayed issuing their report after the customary hour.

The Prince of Wales has buckled down with steady seriousness to the task of carrying out much of his father's work. Foreign diplomats now make their calls on him, and the premier and members of the cabinet go to him with the reports and advice they ordinarily present to the king.

Public duties which the prince customarily carries out will, for the most part and for a long time to come, fall upon the shoulders of the Duke of York and his other younger brother. Meanwhile Wales will do his increased daily work at his own home, York House.

The prince since his return home from South Africa has taken most of his meals with the queen at Buckingham Palace, which is only a few hundred yards away. So far as was known he has not once left the neighborhood since he came back. His only visits have been to his father's palace, the Duke of York's home in nearby Piccadilly and to the squash courts in a club not five minutes' walk from his desk in order to obtain exercise.

MacDonald Talks

Ramsay Mac Donald, Laborite, former prime minister, said in a speech yesterday:

"There is not a member of the old Labor cabinet but joins my prayer that successive bulletins will show that the king is advancing to complete health and strength.

"Those of us who have had the great pleasure of knowing him personally feel at the moment when he is walking through very deep shadows how extraordinarily well, how absolutely impartially he has always done his work as a constitutional monarch and how, in doing it, he has knit us to him, not as an official, but as the great, dignified form of the head of the state, as one who belongs to his nation and who has tried all his life, in all his actions, to carry out a national responsibility and advance national interests."

AGED BROTHER AND SISTER DIE IN FLAMES

Keene, N. H., Dec. 15 (AP).—A 90-year-old man and his 91-year-old sister perished today when fire destroyed the home in which they had lived all their lives.

The home was located about a mile from Surry, near here, and the fire was not discovered until the house was virtually levelled. The brother and sister were Edward and Mary Joslin.

They had lived in the Joslin homestead under the care of Mrs. Ada Hall. Yesterday she left them for the first time in many months to go to her home in Ayer, Mass., for a few days.

A preliminary examination of the ruins failed to reveal how the fire started. The bodies of the aged man and woman had not been recovered. Neighbors said there was no doubt that the pair had perished, for they were not known to have left the house in recent years.

Hoover Hailed In Argentina

President-elect Confers With President Irigoyen on Questions That Have Arisen Between the Two Countries.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 15 (AP).—Hailed as one whose friendly visit would do much to intensify good will between the United States and Argentina, Herbert Hoover today was winding up his sojourn in the sixth largest city of the world.

President Irigoyen welcomed Mr. Hoover by saying: "We cannot doubt that your spontaneous visit must intensify the relations established between our people and so harmoniously maintained."

To this Mr. Hoover replied that the world stood on the threshold of a new era of advancement and that Argentina was among those countries to which the western would look with confidence for its contribution to the future.

During a day crowded with sight seeing and various receptions Mr. Hoover and President Irigoyen managed to spend two hours conferring on questions that have arisen between the two countries. It was believed they discussed the future tariff policy of the United States, the embargo of Argentine meats and other problems that have been the occasion of differences in the past.

It was after this conference that President Irigoyen in officially welcoming Mr. Hoover said Argentina was held fast to the United States by bonds of friendship, since it was the example given by the founders of the North American Republic which gave Argentina its first lessons in democracy. He added:

"Throughout a period of time now immemorial, Argentina, if not America and the world at large, hopes that from your nation will radiate such high and pacific ideals as those which led your eminent late President to convoke at Geneva after the tragic great slaughter of contemporary civilization all peoples so that at a solemn sanctuary they should reaffirm for posterity the eternal and enlightening precept of the divine teacher: 'Love one another'."

Mr. Hoover in replying said he would be proud if he could use the occasion to sound a convincing note of faith and hope in the future of humanity. He believed the fundamental forces of the world were not only making for progress but that the world, and particularly the western world, stood upon the threshold of a new era of advancement. Never before had the outlook been brighter for the march of peace and economic progress, the growth of ordered liberty and liberal institutions, the opportunity for achievement among men and "the growth of those things that dignify and ennoble life."

CHARGES PARAGUAY ATTACKED SMALL BOLIVIAN GARRISON

La Paz, Bolivia, Dec. 15 (AP).—The Bolivian reply to the League of Nations was made public today. It said that Paraguay had been guilty of aggression in attacking a small Bolivian garrison with superior numbers, killing 20 soldiers and two officers, and taking the remaining members of the garrison prisoners after setting fire to the living quarters. The reply continued:

"Paraguay had agreed with Bolivia to submit all differences regarding the zone of demarkation to arbitration and to submit to the peaceful solution of all differences. Despite this agreement and in an inexcusable and surprising manner, breaking articles 10 and 13 of the covenant of the League of Nations, committed the aggression which we denounce solemnly to the council."

The reply then said that the only duty left to Bolivia was to exact satisfaction and in case satisfaction was not forthcoming to take such military measures as might be necessary to preserve and defend Bolivia's security. It charged that Paraguay had concentrated forces in the vicinity and was assembling the general staff in the neighborhood of the frontier.

The note said that it was logical to expect that new clashes would occur and that the Bolivian government should be prepared for such clashes.

The note added that as long as Paraguay refused to satisfy the "reparations she owes" it would not be possible for the Bolivain government to re-enter peaceful negotiations.

ANOTHER VICTIM FOR THE GUN THAT "WASN'T LOADED"

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 15 (AP).—The gun that "wasn't loaded" today had another victim on its score.

Building Code And Zoning Law

Architects, Building and Plumbing Contractors Met With Fire Chief Murphy and City Engineer Codwise and Hear Provisions Discussed.

The new zoning law and the present building code of the city were explained by City Engineer G. Wallace Codwise and Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy to the building and plumbing contractors and architects of the city at a meeting held the past week at the Central Fire Station.

It was made clear at the meeting that any one desiring to build or erect an addition on any residence or place of business must first apply to the city engineer, under the zoning ordinance, for a permit before commencing building operations. After receiving such a permit it is then necessary to apply to the fire chief for a permit to build under the provisions of the building code of the city.

Both City Engineer Codwise and Fire Chief Murphy made it plain that these two steps were necessary to be taken in order to prevent any trouble. The meeting was attended by about sixty of the leading architects, building contractors and plumbing contractors of Kingston.

Wall Street Store Rumor

Alterations are being made at the store property on Wall street formerly occupied by O. F. Fahrenhorst's grocery store. The property, which is owned by Frank Forman, is being altered, the front torn out and a new front will be installed. It is rumored that the store has been leased to the A. & P. Grocery Company for business purposes but since Mr. Forman is absent from town this rumor could not be vertified today.

The store for many years was operated by W. Scott Gillespie as a high class grocery store and was later sold out to E. S. Craft & Son, who continued business, later selling to New York parties, who in turn sold the business to Mr. Fahrenhorst, who closed the business a few weeks ago and retired from the business.

The articles are products of maimed soldiers and consist of hand-woven woolen scarfs, slumber throws, shawls and baby blankets. They are made in many weaves, finished as soft as flannel, and are finished in sun and wash fast coloring. The articles will make appropriate Christmas gifts and it is hoped that the public will consider the wounded ex-servicemen when purchasing.

Mr. English has been very satisfactory here and has made many friends.

State police and Nassau county detectives said the victims apparently were of foreign birth.

Inquest Into Death of Bell

Will Be Held Tuesday at Ellenville Before Coroner Conner to Determine the Circumstances.

An inquest on the body of Ira Bell, Mombaccus resident who died November 17 following an injury, will be held Tuesday at 10:30 o'clock at Firemen's Hall, Ellenville, before Coroner W. N. Conner of this city to determine the circumstances and the cause of the death which followed an injury. Assistant District Attorney Murray will conduct the investigation which is being held before Coroner Conner instead of before Coroner Humiston of Kerhonkson, who will be a witness and therefore cannot sit on the case.

The death of Bell followed injuries which he received when he was crushed between a motor truck and the bank against which the truck had backed while going up a grade near Mombaccus on November 17.

From what can be learned of the circumstances on the afternoon of November 17 Ira Bell and one Thomas Morehouse of Mombaccus drove from that place in a motor truck owned and operated by Ralph Smith to Kyserike to secure a manure spreader. Either before the start or on the way the party celebrated with some prohibition cider. The trip to Kyserike was accomplished and the manure spreader was secured and tied on the rear of the truck and they started back on the return trip.

Caught Between Truck and Bank

On the way up a hill near Mombaccus the manure spreader broke loose and in the excitement which followed the truck started backward down the hill and ran over against the bank and Bell was caught between the truck and the bank.

There was a general mix-up and while that situation continued a second vehicle came along and found the road blocked. Those in Bell's party evidently did not know what to do or what they were doing. The party who arrived on the scene picked Bell up and placed him in the truck of Smith and pushed the manure spreader to one side of the road to permit traffic to move and the truck proceeded back to the Smith place at Mombaccus and Bell was taken in the house.

While in the house Bell complained that he could not get his breath and the door was opened and he crawled out on the porch on his hands and knees. According to the evidence as gathered by State Troopers and representatives of the district attorney's office Bell remained on the porch for half an hour and then when someone went out they found he was dead. There was no examination made to determine what caused death.

Coroner Humiston was notified and came and took charge of the body which was subsequently buried.

Coroner Humiston was in doubt as to the cause of death and as to the circumstances surrounding the death of Bell and asked that further investigation be made. The inquest Tuesday before Coroner Conner is the result. At that time details of the circumstances will be brought out and the probable cause of death determined.

Monarchy Casts Its Dying Glow Across Germany

By John A. Rousman
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Dec. 15 (AP).—Ten years of republican government in Germany have failed to quench the hidden fires of monarchy.

Coinciding with the decennary celebration of the Reich as a republic, there was a stormy scene in the Breslau municipal council over labor motions to remove statutes of Frederick the Great and Frederick William III, and to rename Hohenzollern, Kaiser Wilhelm street and other thoroughfares, substituting the names of Karl Marx, Karl Liebknecht, Rosa Luxemburg and other revolutionary leaders. The motions were carried after violent altercations, but by a narrow majority of 40 to 38.

Another row happened almost simultaneously at Nimptsch, Silesia, where at a dinner to celebrate the opening of a public building portrait pictures of the three German emperors, William I, Frederick III and the former kaiser William II hanging on the walls, were found to be covered over. Monarchists among the party demanded the removing of the coverings, and a wordy fight developed on the question whether or not the ex-kaiser's picture should be taken away. Finally the party broke up in disorder and only a few remained to finish the dinner.

A third coincidence was a libel action brought by Herr von Oldenburg-Januschau, a former chamberlain to the ex-kaiser's court and a noted die hard monarchist, against Herbert Eulenberg, well known author, who in his recent book, "The Hohenzollerns," recalled the story how in 1910 "an East Prussian boor, (meaning Herr Oldenburg) had told the kaiser that his majesty could easily shut that old babbling shop (the Reichstag) with a lieutenant and ten men," a sentiment with which the kaiser completely concurred.

In New York's Social Spotlight

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—New York society turned its attention this week from brilliant parties for debutantes and celebrities to the more earnest business of filling the Christmas stockings of "The other half."

Prince Serge Obelensky and his wife, the former Alice Astor, head of the list of patronesses for the Russian ball to be given January 7, in aid of the poor and the Russian Church Assistance Fund. A large Christmas tree decked with silver and crystals and topped by an illuminated star will be the central decorative feature of the ballroom, since the date of the affair falls on the Russian Christmas. Russian singers in costume will sing native Christmas carols during the supper hour, while debutantes wearing Russian headdresses will move among the guests with trays of holiday bonbons for sale.

A new feature of the holiday season is the first Christmas song festival at which Christmas carols of many nations will be sung by the people's chorus in Carnegie Hall Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Mrs. John Henry Hammond will be among the 200 singers, who will be robed entirely in white. Christmas carols of old England, Germany folk and French holiday songs will be featured.

A cabaret entertainment of soft shoe dancers and close harmony singers, headed by Will Rogers as master of ceremonies, was the method chosen to gain funds for charity at the December ball, given recently at the Ritz Carlton. An eccentric gypsy dance, performed by a barefoot dancer, was a high light of the program.

Miss Nautell Cunningham, the dancer, wore a costume of gypsy red and carried a tambourine. Mrs. John H. Amen and Mrs. F. Higginson Cabot were among committee members of the ball, which was given for the benefit of Grosvenor Neighborhood House.

A Christmas exhibit and sale of toys of which the Junior League is among the sponsors, is drawing society from other activities to the Arden Gallery these wintry afternoons. The exhibition is gay with dolls representing Mother Goose characters and Cinderella figures, all done by modern artists. Twentieth century flappers stand next to dolls of 100 years ago, while historic figures from France, Switzerland and Italy mingle with an army of miniature soldiers of Napoleon. The Junior League will devote its share of the proceeds to the support of its baby shelter and other charitable endeavors.

There was some pause in philanthropic effort for the festivities in honor of debutantes, however. So great has the number of these become during the holiday season that the buds and their escorts form a procession dashing from one party to another where the decoration schemes seem to outdo each other in brilliance. The setting for the supper dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore introduced their daughter, Marion, resembled a corot painting in design. Masses of cybotium fens outlined the walls, which were banked with roses and chrysanthemums. Ropes of ferns outlined the mirrors and panels.

With the approach of the Christmas season weddings have grown less pretentious in tone. Miss Frances Ziegler, whose marriage to John Gibb Alley took place this week, dispensed with the traditional white wedding gown and veil, and chose for her bridal attire a frock of three shades of bois-de-rose with a hat of corresponding shade. Her bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant, Mrs. Richard Le Blond, wore a frock of blue moire taffeta with a velvet hat to match.

Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt is among the members of society who have sponsored the vogue for bouffant evening frocks which have become so popular this season. Mrs. Vanderbilt has appeared at recent functions in a frock of black taffeta whose sweeping skirt, decorated with silver embroidery, almost touches the floor. Her hair is drawn simply over her ears in the fashion of a mid-victorian portrait.

DOCUMENTS SHOW ORIGIN OF FAMOUS VATICAN ART

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—A small but valuable collection of manuscripts relating to work done by eminent Italian artists in connection with the Vatican, is to be found in Soho, the foreign restaurant quarter of London. They are the property of Barberi, the padrone of the Taverna Medicea.

So precious are these manuscripts that Barberi exhibits them rarely. They bear the signatures of such illustrious artists as Bramante, Donatello, Mantegna, Raphael, and Piero della Francesca. All were acquired by their owner in London during the great war.

The most important is a document written by Michael Angelo in Italian. It is his agreement to erect the tomb of Pope Julius II in St. Peter's, and is dated 1513.

NEW FRENCH UNIFORMS MAKE FAT TROOPS SLIM

Paris, Dec. 15 (AP).—French generals are to be made to appear as slim as possible. Their new uniforms will be designed with a fat-reducing effect, so far as the eye is concerned.

The horizon blue they wear now is considered as accentuating the portliness that adorns a number of the 240 generals who are supposed to be models for the smart young lieutenants and good advertising for the army. That is only one aspect of the uniform problem. Others quite important, are cost and appearance.

FRANCE WILL CREATE ARTISTIC COCKTAILS

Paris, Dec. 15 (AP).—Cocktails, once reviled in France as a typically low foreign importation, have become so popular that a French newspaper is backing French-made cocktails against the world.

In a recent contest, arranged for charity, first prize was won by a Scotch newspaperman. The newspaper Paris-Midi disagreed with the decision and promoted a new contest, to be held early in December. Huge prizes were offered.

The newspaper admitted that the Americans, with their longer experience at mixing, held a strong advantage, but expressed the belief that the traditional imagination and enthusiasm of the French, combined with a stronger artistic sense, would enable a Frenchman to win the title of "ace of the shaker".

Old lovers of wine still oppose the cocktail on the ground that, taken before a good meal, the heavy alcohols of its composition numbs the palate and prevent the real appreciation of the delicate wine flavor and bouquet.

MEXICANS ENJOY STEAK AFTER EACH BULL FIGHT

Mexico City, Dec. 15 (AP).—Bull fighting in Mexico serves the practical purpose of supply the market with a considerable quantity of steaks and roasts. After each day's program in the "Plaza de Toros" from six to eight bulls are quartered and carted off to the butcher shops.

Sunday finds the bull fighting arena crowded with fans, who demonstrate their enthusiasm or displeasure over the fights much as a baseball crowd applauds or jeers the players. If a bull does not appear to be in a fighting mood the spectators demand that it be taken away, but if the animal puts up a good battle the fans rise to their feet and shout in delight.

HEALTH OF NOSE, THROAT AND LUNGS

The health of the nose, the throat, and the lungs is important at this season of the year. Nasal stoppage is not only unpleasant, but dangerous. Sore throat interferes with digestion, and unless quickly mastered, infects the system. Lung ailments are responsible for more deaths than any other single group of diseases.

With this season of changeable weather, high winds, dampness, and other influencing factors, it is necessary in the battle for health to build up healthy resistance—or disease will overtake us. Lowered resistance power is most frequently evident in persons easily subject to colds, tonsilitis, asthma, and kindred ills—and in every instance there is found nerve congestion.

Because the nervous system is directly and definitely reached by the skilled Chiropractor, Chiropractic is a scientific method to be employed in your search for better resistance and better health. There are no "home runs" to health. When health is gone, you have to make your way back to normal by easy stages. Nature is not hurried beyond a certain point. Care of your health today will prevent tomorrow's regrets.

...is Designer Sees New Era in Fashions; Originality to Rule.

...Edward Molyneux, one of the ...ing designers of fashionable dress ...Paris, recently arrived in New York ...spent a fortnight's holiday. He ...ught fresh views from the world's ...e capital as to the trends to be ...ed today in fashions wherever well-...ssed women gather.

"We are," he said, to a fashion writ...in the New York Times, "at the ...ve of a new era in dress. The day ...uniformity is over, and the time ...s passed when women will all look ...e, as they have done for years. ...t that this uniformity came about ...ther a cannot or perfunctory way ...the part of women of taste. On ...e contrary, it has been considered ...ic for a woman to adopt whatever ...nced to be the mode of the mo...ent. Now, however, there is an en...n change of heart, and styles will ...ceforth be far more individual, ...re original."

In the future, Captain Molyneux be...ves, a woman will study her own ...e and give serious thought to wear...g whatever best becomes her.

"This is a long step forward, and ...e shall continue to go forward," he ...id. "There is to be henceforth no ...rking back to the other days for ...r conception. Art in dress has be...me creative and will be more so as ...men appreciate its importance and ...ir own possibilities in beauty and ...le."

Reminded of the popularity of the ...be de style, he said:

"Even that has undergone a com...te change and is utterly modern...ed in interpretation. It is a far cry ...m the hoop skirts and crinoline of ...den times to the wide-skirted, state...y gown which belongs particularly to ...anne Lanvin, and the robe de style ...f today means any one of many pic...resque models varying in the details ...f hemline, panels or trimming. Per...nally, I never make what is known ...s the robe de style, for I prefer slim ...houettes and supple lines. These ...e becoming to the woman of lovely ...gure and helpful to the woman who ...s, so to speak, no figure at all, for ...btle and clever variations are pos...ble."

Skirts Are Longer.

When asked his view about the ...gth of skirts he said, emphatically: ...kirts are to be—already are—defi...tely longer. The knee-length skirt ...s always seemed to me an absolute ...garity, and one thing that has sur...ised me in my first views of Amer...a is the skirt cut even above the ...ee. Strangely enough Parisians, to ...om Americans have, I believe, al...ys looked for extremes, have never ...rn skirts as short as one sees now ...the avenues of New York."

Captain Molyneux does not apply ...s rule of complete individuality and ...iginality to sports clothes. These, ...e thinks, should be more or less uni...rm and altogether practical. But

...ress of Beige Tricot, Sports Style, Smart Straight Lines.

...resses made on this model, he be...ves, are to be henceforth for sports ...ly, and not made of every sort of ...abric for every type of dress, for ...ear from morning till night. The ...shion of making gowns for at least ...emiformal occasions of splendid fab...ics on the same model as frocks for ...he tennis court and sailboat came ...riginally from Paris, and there it is ...ow considered to be out of fashion. ...softer, more graceful type of dress ...now in style for every occasion, ex...pt in sports dress and the strictly ...ilored costume for traveling and the ...treet.

Captain Molyneux regards fashion ...s a matter of genuine importance. ...t is a mistake, he believes, for any ...ne to regard it frivolously. For, he ...ys, not only women themselves are ...ffected by their dress, but so are men ...n their appreciation, conscious or oth...rwise, of a well-dressed woman. It ...s all a question of chic, he points out, ...nd he defines the "acme of chic" as ...the ability to be correctly dressed for the occasion.

Some of his dictums are: A woman's dress should never be obtrusive. Her dress should not dominate her personality—it should be the other way around. It is a mistake for a woman to think that by putting on something striking and flamboyant she is adding to her style. It is her costume, not herself, that impresses, and the incongruity is likely to be obvious.

Admires American Taste.

Disclaiming any intention of flattering Americans, this fashion authority expressed his admiration of our women and their taste in styles in enthusiastic terms. "I am amazed," he said, "at the chic of women in New York, who, I understand, represent women from all over the United States. They rival the fashionable Americans in Paris, who are almost the equal in chic of the French women themselves—not quite the equal for with the well-dressed Parisienne chic is an instinct, and with her now, as traditionally, it is not a matter of expense but of taste, and French women are famous for their ability to dress well on little or nothing."

To American women Molyneux gives credit for their endeavor to make the best of themselves. Answering the age-old criticism of the women of England who, with the exception of an outstanding minority, are considered always to look dowdy, he said: "They seem never to think that it matters. I consider they are mistaken, and in the present generation I think they are changing for the better."

Among the collections being presented in Paris, that from the house of Molyneux is making a particular feature of velvet. In a conspicuously smart evening gown of black velvet both the slim silhouette and the flare are emphasized. It is without a semblance of trimming, the neck is cut moderately low in a rounded line, back and front, the armholes are wide, and the gown follows the line of the figure to a point below the hips, where a flounce gives it a flare, dropping in graduated clusters of plaits, so that on one side it almost touches the ground.

The charm of such gowns is in their combination of a dignified and simple design with rich and colorful fabric. Other materials besides velvet shown in these models include satin, metal brocade, and sheer laces and chiffons. For afternoon gowns, figured velvets are shown in a variety of patterns and colors.

Use of Metal Cloth.

Metal cloth is used for many handsome gowns and wraps in the collections, both here and abroad. One New York establishment shows a flowered chiffon dinner gown with oriental colors, made with interlacing gilt thread in pattern. A frock designed for informal dinner and the play, which has a skirt of plaited chiffon, is shown with a long overblouse of gilt brocaded chiffon made on soft lines, with a girdle that is swathed about the hips to one side of the front, where the ends are drawn through two jeweled rings.

A later model, designed by Drecoll, is made of black noncrushable velvet printed with large dahlias in mellow shades of red and rich yellows. The bodice, cut with the new high, round line in front and deep narrow V almost to the belt in the back, blouses softly and is crushed about the lower part to form a girdle with a handsome ornament at one side. Because of the figured fabric used, the gown hangs in flaring folds, with wide informal plaits at one side, which dip below the hemline. Black velvet on which are printed gorgeous red flowers is introduced in a bolero in the low-cut back of the bodice, beneath which is shown a plain yoke drawn about the hips. From this the skirt hangs in a train effect, with soft folds and deep points.

An evening model from Jenny of subtle composition is built of black chantilly lace over flesh-tinted chiffon. The dress, cut with deep points in front, back and under the arm, is made plain and long, with flaring layers of black chiffon attached at the hipline, forming a long, sheer overskirt with an uneven hem.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

Dame Fashion really had to smile the other Saturday morning when she spent a full hour studying various wonderful negligee robes and silken padded gowns. For they were not the appropriate gowns for that hour. Saturday morning is the time when every mature woman who ever bestirs herself to activity is "up and at them," as historic generals have said, to conquer the many tasks that naturally fall to that time in the week.

Grace J. Austin.

Yet it was a delightful contrast, on that Saturday, to study such beauty and realize that there are hours of ease for most of us, somewhere in the twenty-four, when such can be worn.

Back in the warm June days the thin coolie coat or thin georgette pajama affairs, all floating frills and lace ruffles, may have had their innings, but with the cold weather, woman in her leisure hours delights in the soft-padded robe that makes her look as cozy as a kitten. Though even a lighter silk creation, when it is rippling all around the neck and down the front with ostrich feathers in some delectable color, gains an effect of suitable warmth.

Japan is the mother country for rich black silk kimonos, often with big striking circles of color effect or embroidery in gold. Paris, on the other hand, is generally the land that sponsors fringe, for no one knows better than the Frenchwoman just the subtle influence in the swish of a long silk fringe. But it took some genius of an American to plan a negligee robe that would have the slenderizing effect of the lithe black silk kimono, the glory of the gold embroidery, and yet be bordered and festooned with long graceful black silk fringe.

Dame Fashion saw one perfect robe that any bride might covet to grace her trousseau tea before the wedding, and later, to gain compliments for her during a home evening before the fireplace, with the radio sending forth sentimental airs. For Dame Fashion refuses to believe that many American husbands, even of the millionaire class, which is not so abundant in the ordinary existence of most of us—use much time in the morning for adoring looks at their wives' silk-padded robes. That special perfect example was of a radiant light blue, with its ostrich cascades of a delicate orchid.

Speaking of brides, Dame Fashion is becoming nearly convinced that the number of the almost traditional June brides is being strongly exceeded by the winter ones. An entertaining letter this week from a young girl in New York who had heard Dame Fashion pour out enthusiasm about a velvet-clad wedding of recent weeks, declared, "Dame Fashion, you have quite changed my opinions. I always thought I would be a June bride, but since I have been thinking about an ivory-velvet wedding gown, I'm certainly going to put the date of my wedding in cold weather."

Dame Fashion really "feels it in her bones," as old folks in New England used to say, that two modes are in for a comfortable and enduring stay—the use of velvet, and the immensely comfortable and youthful-looking cap-shaped hat.

Saratoga Sets New Speed Mark

San Pedro, Cal., Dec. 15 (AP).—The United States Navy's huge airplane carrier Saratoga was hailed today as the speed queen of the seas and the most powerful ship afloat, following her performance in breaking the world's record for power recently set by her sister ship, the Lexington, and establishing a new speed mark for fighting ships.

Steaming over almost the same course in which the Lexington exactly one month ago set a maritime record, the Saratoga's electric plant yesterday developed a peak of 215,518 horsepower, which drove the 33,000-ton monster through the sea at a speed of 34.99 knots, or more than forty statute miles an hour. The Lexington's record was 209,751 horsepower and a speed of 34.82 knots.

The Lexington's high power marks were made on a full power endurance run of one hour, while the Saratoga's new world's record, made on her final acceptance trial, was confined to a one-mile course.

Battle fleet officers were jubilant over results of the Saratoga's final trials and declared that the performance of the sister ships proves the worth of the American idea of applying electric power to warship construction.

The Saratoga was expected by naval officials to develop even greater speed and power when she runs off her one hour and four-hour full power tests.

The Saratoga and Lexington are each 850 feet long, displace 33,000 tons and cost the Navy $45,000,000 apiece. Each is a floating home for more than one hundred fighting planes. They also have eight 8-inch main battery guns, 12 five-inch anti-aircraft guns and four torpedo tubes.

The power plant of each ship consists of sixteen 11,250 horsepower boilers and four main steam turbines.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEALTH.

In its 50th anniversary edition the St. Louis Post-Dispatch publishes a 1,000-word article by President Coolidge in which he suggests that incumbents of his great office should have a retreat, of sort of rural White House, not far from Washington to which they could retire frequently for rest and refreshment. In the course of this notable article Mr. Coolidge discusses his own health and efforts to keep fit, in part as follows:

I have often remarked that at least I had one distinction. I have been the healthiest President the country has ever had. My ability to keep well has not been due to a particularly robust constitution or to any extraordinary efforts in physical exercise. My habits have been regular. It is seldom that I have been late at meal time and I have avoided keeping late hours. Very little work has been done before breakfast, but usually I have taken a short walk, and during the winter season a more extended walk before dinner, which has been my chief mode of exercise. * * * Such activities have been adopted as could be put into operation at once without the necessity of a change of clothing, or travel to some other location before exercise could begin.

There is no direct mention of the President's celebrated mechanical horse, but he says he has "kept a couple of vibrating machines" in his room and has found them "helpful." Doubtless many readers will be pleased to receive from so high a source such hints as to how to keep fit, and the writer of Dr. Copeland's daily health talks especially may glean some useful suggestions from Mr. Coolidge's graciously detailed statement of his methods.

RIVER PIRATES.

There is a photoplay dealing with river piracy in New York harbor that tends to beget incredulous smiles, so unbelievably bold seem the robberies and so absurdly inadequate the protection therefrom. And yet in a recent conference in the Maritime Exchange Building, New York City, it was asserted that, in spite of a harbor police employing fourteen motor launches, the value of merchandise stolen annually from craft afloat and tied up to piers "runs to a staggering amount," and that 300 boats are preying on commerce in the rivers and upper and lower bays. Deputy Manager Wilson of the Port of New York Authority is quoted as saying that the handling of fifty million dollars worth of merchandise a day in New York harbor furnishes "a tremendous field for criminal activity."

It is stated that ship owners are even paying money to waterfront gangs to be exempted from robbery, in connection with which startling situation I. C. Campbell, general counsel for the American Steamship Owners' Association, is quoted as saying that "if we must surrender to the racketeers, then our civilization is coming to a very severe test." Why has the amazingly successful activity of the river thieves brought about an approximation of such "surrender" already? The only answer that seems to have been suggested is that police protection is notoriously inadequate. Therefore it is urged that special legislation to suppress harbor piracy should include a better equipped and vastly enlarged water police.

DECEMBER MOSQUITOES.

A man in West Orange, N. J., was recently summoned to court to answer a charge of driving out tenants of the first floor of his home by burning sulphur candles in the basement. He said he had to burn the candles to kill the mosquitoes that infested the place. The judge said there were no mosquitoes in the community at this time of year, and fined the householder $ for contempt in sticking to his statement.

Then the fun began. The local mail was suddenly increased to amazing proportions by the assortment of biting and dead mosquitoes sent by indignant and sympathetic fellow citizens both to the judge and the defendant. Glass jars containing live mosquitoes, flies, gnats and fleas arrived. The judge received a sheaf of statistics showing that in the winter of 1912 drastic measures were necessary in the New Jersey state legislature to hold mosquitoes in check.

Here, truly, is a glowing example of the human capacity for self-sacrifice in an unselfish cause. Ordinarily one wouldn't expect a whole community to admit so readily the presence of mosquitoes in December, but sympathy for the candle-burner seems to have overcome all pride. When truth and justice are at stake, the West Orange folk care nothing for a mosquito-less reputation.

A judge in Chicago is said to have discovered to his surprise that anyone can buy a machine gun in that city. There is no law against it. The fact came out in a case against a pair of charming gentlemen who had calmly ordered seven machine guns sent to a vacant store room, and got them. The pair furnished additional proof of their cleverness and unconventionality by paying for the guns with a worthless check. Yes, it certainly is easy to get arms in Chicago. His Honor needn't have been so surprised. Honest men might have difficulty; but the chances are that an experienced gunman could get anything from an automatic pistol to a Big Bertha on the installment plan.

As Christmas approaches, laments the New York Times, "the problem of what to give the children becomes more desperate." An obvious difficulty is that the children of prosperous families have had everything already.

Members of the House and Senate sent out 520,117,717 pieces of mail last year and the Postoffice, which is run at a loss, did the handling and hauling without charge.

THE OLDEST AILMENT

If you were asked what was the oldest ailment known, you might have to think for a time, and then simply make a guess.

What you have always known as rheumatism, now called arthritis, is the oldest ailment of which we have historical record; joint disorders effected men in the stone age and even the animals previous to that, says Dr. D. L. Tabern.

It is pretty definitely believed now that the majority of cases of arthritis are due to an infection of some kind.

In Great Britain, where rheumatism is so prevalent and causes so much distress and loss of time from employment, most intensive study of the cause of rheumatism is being made.

It is agreed that about 80 per cent is due to infected teeth and tonsils, 15 per cent to the intestine including gall bladder, and the other 5 per cent from other points in the body.

However after the infected teeth and tonsils are removed there are often further attacks of rheumatism, much to the distress of patient and physician.

This simply means that although the factory that is manufacturing the poison has been destroyed, the product of the factory, the poisons, are still in the body, and set up trouble in the joints and in the heart itself.

The natural treatment therefore would be, after the infectious part has been removed, to use any and every means to hurry the circulation and so remove these poisons from the system.

Accordingly heat in various forms, electricity, and drugs which increase the circulation (especially of the lymphatic system from which the joints receive their nourishment and give up their wastes) are being used.

Another point, and it is most important, is that once the infected teeth, tonsils, or gall bladder have been removed, that in addition to the heat or drugs used, every effort should be used to move the affected parts and thus prevent stiffness; that is in cases where the X-ray shows that it would be safe to do so.

The idea then is that although rheumatism is the oldest ailment known, it is only in the last thirty years that we have learned something of its cause and how to treat it intelligently.

Peasant In Russia Still Backward To Other Lands

By James A. Mills
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Tambor, Central Russia (AP)—The years which have passed since 100,000,000 Russians serfs were declared free people by Czar Alexander II in 1861, have changed but little the life of the "moujik" of former days, the "tovarish" of today.

A deep precipice remains between the worker in industrial cities and the bulk of Russian peasantry. While workers are comparatively well-off, receive regular salaries and enjoy an eight-hour working day, the peasant continues his dogged work from four in the morning until late into the night, earning just enough to keep his family from starving.

The proportion of agricultural machinery and tractors to the rural population, although considerably increased during recent years, remains low. The greater part is used on the fertile territories of south Russia and southwest Siberia, the remaining territories still being cultivated by plows and harrows used 50 years ago.

The peasants live in log houses with thatched roofs, exposed to destructive fires. The house usually has two rooms: the "clean half" and the "black half." The whole family, which is always numerous, eats, sleeps and rests in the "black half," the other being used on great holidays only for guests. The center of the house is occupied by a huge brick stove serving for cooking food, and in winter for warming. Some houses are lighted by kerosene lamps, but millions of peasant homes are yet lighted by the burning of wood splinters. As a result, the interior of the houses is always dark and smoky.

The food is simple. Buckwheat or millet gruel with sunflower seed oil, cabbage soup, the so called "shi," sour milk, black bread and meat on holidays, constitute the peasant fare. Butter seldom appears at his table—the product is expensive and taken to the nearest market for sale. At dinner time the whole family, armed with wooden spoons, sits around the table and pulls one after another at the pot with the food.

The peasant's life is dull. In summer he is up and out in his fields all day. In winter he looks after his livestock, hunts, thrashes rye or wheat or sometimes moves to the nearest city, where he tries to add something to his meager budget by offering his services as "izvoshik" or cab driver.

Occasionally on Sundays he attends drinking parties, at which "samogon" or moonshine vodka is absorbed in huge quantities, the drinking usually being followed by bloody fighting and complete intoxication. In summer he passes his short hours of rest sitting on his threshold gnawing sunflower seeds, an occupation practiced by every person in a Russian village. These seeds are consumed to such an amount that on Sundays village streets resemble a soft carpet formed of sunflower swads.

It is true that soviet authorities are making strenuous efforts to raise the peasant's cultural level by means of the radio, clubs and motion pictures; the number of primary village schools has grown, but the 126,000,000 peasant population of the soviet union still is far from the standards of life that prevail in other European countries.

When a man calls his wife "Dear" during the holidays he means it in two ways.

Women of Turkey Find Freedom Has Drawbacks

(By Priscilla Ring, Associated Press Correspondent)

Angora, Turkey, Dec. 15 (AP).—Gazi Moustapha Kemal, iron-handed shaper of the new Turkey's destiny, has turned to a woman for help. She is Madame Flore Boccart, Belgian educational expert, who has come here post-haste at the Turkish government's request to make emancipation safe for the womanhood of Turkey.

In the present stage of transition Turkish women are at a critical cross-roads, half terrified by the skeleton of their imprisoned past which dangles there and half befuddled by the vista of the strange free future which stretches before them.

It is this transition period which finds 50 per cent of the women throughout the land insane or neurasthenic, according to the estimate of Turkey's leading alienist, Dr. Mezhar Osman, and fills the press with almost daily instances of suicides among girls and young women. The weakening of parental and religious authority under the new regime, the opportunity for romantic love affairs instead of the strictly business marriages of the old days, the curtailment of all the seclusion and ever virtual imprisonment which yet granted protection from the woes that beset freedom, have all been factors tending to make Turkish women lose their balance.

Much has been written about their gigantic progress in the last few years, but in reality among the 10 per cent of literate Turkish women can be counted today only a handful who have definitely taken up professions, not more than a half-dozen each of doctors, lawyers, actresses and writers.

The vast majority of the upper classes have learned nothing new except the Charleston; over 90 per cent of Turkish women still wear the veil, and practically all of them are at their wits' end to know what to do with this new freedom.

Work is the panacea for the wounds of transition, decrees the Gazi, and to work the women of the land shall go under the skilled direction of the Belgian expert, Madame Boccart.

She is opening her campaign this year with the creation of the first vocational schools for girls in Turkey, one here in the new capital and two at Constantinople. Next year Smyrna, Trebizond, Adana and the other chief Anatolian cities will have each its first girls' vocational school, and thus gradually the young women of Turkey are to learn how to employ their time and gain their livelihood, two arts of which they are now almost totally ignorant.

Their intelligence and energy, which some say surpasses that of Turkish men, will probably carry them far once they get started. Within the next ten years Turkey's present shaky economic situation should be greatly strengthened by the influx into trades and business of the nation's woman power trained in the new vocational schools.

Madame Boccart's practical and far-sighted program includes not only all the usual courses of vocational schools, but also the rehabilitation of important old Turkish handicrafts long defunct, such as embroidery, ceramics and the fabrication of fine brocades, all of which, redeveloped by the girls whom she will train, can form an important part of Turkey's exports.

Stenography and millinery will be the two revolutionary branches of the new schools, for to date there has never been a Turkish stenographer and there has never been a Turkish milliner. The Turkish form of the Arabic alphabet was a kind of shorthand in itself, hence no stenographers were needed, but with the recent adoption of the Latin alphabet the need of typists and stenographers has been created.

In the few years since hats have become permissible for women no Turkish girl has turned milliner, but the Turkish government's recent summoning of an important Belgian milliner, Madame Casian, chief of the Bruxelles house which hats the Queen of Belgium, is calculated to give impetus to this neglected trade through the millinery courses which she is to give in the new vocational schools.

One of the high points in Madame Casnain's job, according to the Kemalists' program, is to evolve a style of hat so becoming to the Turkish type that Turkish women will be weaned from the "uncivilized" veils to which they cling through vanity and economy and which, as a fact, worn as they now are in turbanlike swathes about bobbed hair, are far more fetching than any hat the civilized west has yet produced.

WEST SHOKAN'S UNSOLVED MYSTERY; EVENTS OF 1853.

West Shokan, Dec. 15.—One of the unsolved mysteries of this locality as related by Uncle Jake Crispell of Shokan which happened during the month of July, 1863, follows: Isaiah Crispell, who was the grandfather of Mrs. Alvena Honson, now residing at Tongore, then resided on the farm owned by Oscar Rider when taken by New York city, located about one mile south of the Shokan bridge along the road to Brodhead. On the morning in question Mr. Crispell stated that he was going to Maltby Hollow to buy some lumber at the sawmill, then owned by Garrison Davis, and that he would on that afternoon attend the funeral of a neighbor, Mrs. Henry Crispell. Mr. Crispell was seen that morning by Mrs. Garrison Davis, who resided along the road leading to Maltby Hollow as he passed their house. That was the last ever seen or heard of him as he never reached the mill some distance beyond. On his failing to return home at night an alarm was sounded and for days searching parties scoured the mountains and searched the streams but without avail. Whatever became of him still remains an unsolved mystery. At the time of his disappearance he was a man of 67 years of age and in apparent good health. Mrs. Honson states that she can distinctly remember as a small child of the time when her grandfather disappeared, also of the death of her father, Henry Rose, during the preceding month of February, when he was a soldier in the Union Army, and whose body was later shipped home.

Events of 1853, as taken from the diary of the late Col. John B. Davis:

Jan. 11—Funeral of Dinah Dubois at the Dutch Church, Shokan.

Feb. 12—Sewing Society at Dutch Church.

Feb. 22—Town auditors met at A. S. Hill's.

Feb. 26—Snowy day. Whig caucus at A. S. Hill's. Hiram Humphrey nominated for supervisor. Martin Schutt, justice.

May 2—Day for granting tavern and grocery licenses. Commissioners met in town of Olive.

Sept. 4—Sacrament administered at Shokan Church.

Sept. 14—Surveying road to Shokan across the Shokan bridge to Bushkill. Gitty Maria Burgher hanged herself in the woods, about 40 rods in the rear of James W. Graham's house.

RUSSIAN BOOTLEGGERS SELL U. S. DOLLARS

Warsaw, Dec. 15 (AP)—Every night, many thousands of smugglers, landsharks and bootleggers, cross the Polish border, one way or the other, but only about 500 a month are caught at their illicit trade.

A glance at the map of Poland shows almost unrivaled opportunities for smuggling. To the north lies the small Danzig free city territory, where living is about twice as expensive as in Poland. Then there is the disputed 120 mile strip of territory along the Lithuanian demarcation line, where, as there are no regular commercial relations between the two countries, smuggling is rampant, and firing upon smugglers is often mistaken for clashes between Polish and Lithuanian frontier guards.

In the east there are many loopholes in the 500 miles of wild forest swamp lands through which the Russo-Polish borderline runs. One gets more roubles for a ten-dollar bill outside than inside Russia, where the official quotation is kept pegged.

Precious stones, silks, drugs and currency, preferably American dollars, are the principal stock-in-trade of the smuggling fraternity. All deals at the Russo-Polish frontier are made in American dollars, or, as in medieval times, goods are simply exchanged. Poles barter manufactured articles against Russian furs, which are also often paid for in diamonds. As all of these transactions have to be made in double quick time for fear of discovery by frontier guards, most smugglers have little glasses marked to indicate the average value in diamonds.

Thus, one quarter of the glass filled with diamonds is worth $100, a half-filled glass, $200. Most of those stones are of poor quality and many of them are spurious, so the risk is always against the buyer, although sometimes, it is said, they strike it remarkably lucky.

"Where to, Stranger?"

A YOUNG man arrives in Kingston. He is a stranger. His first concern is to find a place to live, a furnished room, perhaps; maybe an apartment, or possibly a home for his family. Where then will he find them with no loss of time. In the want ad pages of The Freeman of course. These pages contain practically complete up-to-the-minute listings of the vacant rental property in Kingston.

Taxiing Around The Airports

The recent addition to the Tuscaloosa, Ala., municipal airport has been completely graded. Grass seed has been sown so that the area should become available for use early next spring. Tuscaloosa is petitioning the post office department for a stop on a regular air mail route.

The Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., has under advisement the establishment of a suitable airport close to its holdings and sanitarium buildings. The airport would make possible quick communication with the clinic by air for doctors and patients.

French Lick, the Indiana resort, is preparing to establish airport facilities for the use of guests of the large hotels there.

Borough airports are becoming the vogue in metropolitan cities, which recognize the necessity of having flying fields close to the important centers of population within the community. Three boroughs in the Pittsburgh metropolitan area are now considering establishment of a joint airport to serve the territory embraced by that district.

Lorain and Elyria, Ohio, plan to construct a joint airport to be operated by the two cities as a municipal venture. Options have been obtained upon land in the immediate vicinity of the two cities, and actual construction is planned as soon as preliminary surveys to determine its adaptability are completed.

Night lighting equipment will be in operation at Toney Field, Pine Bluff, Ark., about December 1. Situated halfway between Memphis and Dallas, Pine Bluff is a stopping place for a fairly heavy regular air traffic, necessitating several improvements of the old field.

Harbox Field at Muskogee, Okla., for many years a stop on the Army Model Airway, is to be taken over by the city and enlarged, according to Muskogee city officials. Much of the traffic from St. Louis to the west coast over the southern route makes Muskogee a fuel and service stop.

Improvements of the Iowa City, Ia., airport, for many years a divisional stop on the trans-continental airway, is now well under way. A large addition is being made to the southern end of the field, and numerous changes made in equipping it.

Final arrangements are being completed for the lighting of the new Evansville, Ind., municipal airport, which has been designated as a stop on the Atlanta-Chicago airways and also will be the junction of the Omaha-Kansas City-St. Louis and Evansville airway with the Atlanta-Chicago route.

Maricopa, Cal., officially dedicated a new airport November 17, which is caring for considerable heavy air traffic each day. The runways are oiled and the port well equipped.

Tokyo, Dec. 15 (AP).—The first trial by jury under the new criminal procedure is considered by the judicial authorities to have demonstrated the benefits of the system adopted from Britain and America.

The jury system is being put into practice slowly and the first two months produced less than a dozen criminal cases in which the right of a jury trial was invoked. This right is permitted only in cases involving the death penalty or sentences of more than three years.

Baltimore and Boston are the dioceses having the largest numbers of representatives, Brooklyn, Albany, Philadelphia, Providence and Louisville following in the order named.

Thirty-three of the students enrolled in this higher seminary are candidates for the priesthood this coming year, and constitute the class of 1929. From 1927 to 1928 the American College had 48 of its alumni ordained priests here in Rome.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

- with Marvelous New Bodies by Fisher!

Only a short time has elapsed since The Outstanding Chevrolet was introduced—but already it has swept on to one of the greatest triumphs in automotive history. Never before has the American public so overwhelmingly endorsed a new Chevrolet—for never before has there been provided, at prices within the reach of everyone, such a generous measure of beauty, comfort, performance and dependability!

New Fisher Bodies

The marvelous new bodies by Fisher—longer, lower and roomier, with all closed models equipped with adjustable driver's seat that may be moved forward and back for proper driving comfort—represent one of the most valuable contributions ever made to motor car comfort and beauty. The hood streams back from the voguish new chromium plated radiator in straight, unbroken lines and blends flawlessly into the body contours. Body mouldings divide at the cowl line—giving a paneled effect to the cowl and hood that is both distinctive and pleasing. Concave front pillars lengthen and smarten the profile. And distinctive new Ternstedt hardware lends a final touch of custom elegance.

New Six-Cylinder Motor

The great new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine was developed from more than a hundred motors that were built and tested over a period of four years by Chevrolet engineers. Not only does it develop 32% more power than any previous Chevrolet engine . . . not only is it sensationally faster and swifter in acceleration—but it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that are almost unbelievable in a low-priced automobile.

It idles along in the traffic line with remarkable ease and quietness. It leaps ahead at the signal light like an arrow from a bow. It takes the hills, no matter how steep, with truly astounding ease. And it delivers this amazing performance with an economy averaging better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

New Comfort and Handling Ease

But sensational as this performance is—it is matched in impressiveness by the marvelous comfort and handling ease that have been engineered into the chassis. The heavy, rigid, channel steel frame extends beyond the entire length of the body and rests on four semi-elliptic shock-absorber springs—set parallel with the road. The front springs are 36 inches long and the rear springs 54 inches—while all spring shackles are equipped with Alemite fittings.

The steering mechanism is designed with ball bearings throughout, with complete lubrication at all points of contact. Brake pedals are correctly spaced for easy and safe manipulation. The two-beam headlights are controlled by a foot button located on the floor boards. And a slender, flat-type steering wheel fits snugly into the hands.

NGING HOURS SUGGEST MASS AND LUXURY IN TEXTURE AND LINE

New York—When the days are at ge shortest, one's concern is for cks of simple fastenings, and for dlgees and frocks that slip on and easily. Because one has so little e for leisure, the easily adjusted dlgee is important.

The height of luxury in such ings is the fur robe, made of mosaic e pieces of contrasting fur and osen in harmony with but not reating the colors of the negligee. lk negligees cozily lined with cashere or wool crepe (or more luxious still with velvet) are among oliday offerings, still possible to ansfer from shops to one's internal rcle. Christmas naturally brings ockings to mind—smart shops reort a great interest in silk mesh se and in sheer silk ones in such ades as beechnut and other tones harmony with fur. That the newt stockings are bowing to French eferences and are clocked is someing to guide one in last minute rchases.

Woodstock Parties In Winter Show

National Academy Honors Carl Wuermer—Other Local Painters Represented—Sales and Praise Follow Show.

(By F. G. Clough)

The National Academy of Design, at 215 West Fifty-Seventh street, New York city, is showing a large number of paintings, sculpture, drawings, etchings, engravings and prints in their annual, or winter exhibition. In this exhibit there are a number of well-known artists and a few of the Woodstockers who rank as Academicians have work on the walls of the galleries which should be of special interest to Kingston and Woodstock readers of this newspaper.

Wuermer Takes Prize

Perhaps first in significance among Woodstock artists in this show is Carl Wuermer, whose painting, "Winter Day," has won the Murphy Memorial Prize for 1928. This picture is ostensibly from our own Catskills; it shows one of those clear, cold, frosty days when houses, fences and lifeless tree-limbs stand out like chiseled items in the landscape. If the artist seems to have conventionalized his work in this painting, its merit lies chiefly in the perfectness of design. Wuermer, but a youngster, has a maturity in his sincerity; he has labored hard and long to achieve such distinction as is his in this present showing of many men who have worked longer with less result.

Carlson's Painting

There is another canvas, a huge painting of "Veiled Tahoma," by John F. Carlson, doubtless painted the past season when this artist visited the northwestern mountain ranges of the United States. Mr. Carlson has painted a snow-capped and cloud-capped mountain with vigor; his characteristic wood-interior technique is evident in the foreground of evergreens and knolls dotted with snow patches. This painting is of a tremendous western mountain panorama, and the artist has caught the mood of a land with which he only recently became acquainted.

Other Artists Represented

Another local artist represented is Alfred Hutty, whose etchings have won him distinction in many places. He shows six pieces; a drawing of "Charleston Tenements," displays a master hand; an etching of "Pines," is annotated with a "Sale" ticket as evidence that it has found supreme favor with some visitor at this exhibition.

There is a painting by John F. Folinsbee, three times a prize winner at previous N. A. exhibits. His present contribution is titled: "Passing Tow Mules," and depicts in a gray key that seems startlingly vivid, two mules along a canal, animals that seem to be going into the night like camels leaving an oasis on a desert for unknown travels.

Also known at the Catskill Mountain art colony is Charles Vezin, who shows a painting, "Factories," which though sentimentalized, has a definite tone. If one prefers these modern subjects done by a Charles Rosen, he has no place at the Academy show.

Local Subjects

Harry Leith-Ross is represented with two paintings, one a "House on the Hill" and the other a "Farm at Willow." The reviewer likes his first-mentioned canvas the better; in this the artist has dramatized autumn foliage as the key-note for an old New England homestead scene. The Willow farmstead is in greens, and though it has a unity of composition and mood, offers perhaps less originality of conception.

Southwest Shown

From the southwest have come a number of paintings, notably those by E. Irving Couse, Walter Ufer, O. E. Berninghaus, Gerald Cassidy, and Robert Reid. With the exception of Messrs. Cassidy and Reid, these men have been former prize winners at National Academy exhibitions. Reid's painting shows his usual charm and delicacy of technique; Ufer's painting catches the western atmosphere, brings it to Gotham; Couse's Indian figure is excellent, though stereotyped; Berninghaus is a close second to Couse with a similar painting; Cassidy catches the glamor of a romanticized adobe house enhanced by an artistic foreground; worth additional mention is a mural-sized work by A. L. Groll, an Arizona Panoroma of mesas and sagebrush, a painting anyone should like to own.

A former Woodstocker is Ethelyn Cobb (now of Buffalo) who is represented with "At Marblehead," a painting in greens and grays which is especially vigorous for a woman-painter, and shows an unusual mastery of the fundamental forms for art.

Many Sales Made

In this exhibit, which lists over 460 pieces, one notes sales by Jes Schlaikjer and J. H. Boston; the former has found a new owner for one of the more modern paintings in the show; Boston has found a purchaser for a nude (quite a phenomenon). Among the etchings is a piece by Margery Ryerson, two children at a piano, one playing the violin and the other at the keyboard, from which eleven copies have been sold thus far.

Modernists Flattered

What shall one say of the exhibit as a whole? It is prolific: the National Academy has done much to foster a wide acceptance of American art. Let critics scoff at the pastorals, the landscapes, the portraits, the conventional works.—the public continues to buy just these things. Let the Independents, those who are blazing trails toward individualized art expression, take courage and be flattered to note that these accepted masters of the brush and oils have stolen modern thunder by using potent colors, by copying imported and splashy techniques with that moderation which must mark much of the Academy's work as worthy of attention from both laymen and critics.

If someone has done you an injury this is the season in which to forgive him.

ST. MORITZ MAY TINT ITS SNOW IN DEFERENCE TO FASHION

New York—The problem of clothes for environments often unfamiliar has to be taken up by the fortunates who have time and money for anything from a world cruise to a hurried trip either for southern bathing or northern skiing.

Winter sports have become a most important consideration in the program of fashionables, this being more true in Europe than with us possibly because Riviera sunshine is a doubtful quantity, while St. Moritz sunshine is a sure thing.

It is amusing to realize that not only are fashions influenced by their environment, but the environment is reported about to be influenced by fashion. There is a rumor that Alpine snows are to be dyed in fashionable hues, in deference to the craze for color! One hastens to admit, that only limited spaces will be subject to this indignity. Incidentally it may be recalled that St. Moritz, startled the world last season by the acceptance of black for the smartest skiing costume. It has been fashion's caprice for a year or more to take colors from their accustomed environment and place them elsewhere. Street shades in the ball room and black on the ice were excellent examples.

Whether black goes over the top as the accepted thing for winter sports, the tendency for winter sports wear is toward darker colors while Palm Beach wardrobes remain brilliant, in about the same proportion to white as last season. Dark colors are out of a tropical picture.

Evening clothes are less influenced by the points of the compass than those selected for the great open spaces. Yellow has come back —and with it every shade of green, especially the lighter tones, and the so called nursery shades, which are of course of the blue-for-a-boy and pink-for-a-girl type.

Travelers' lives are becoming more complicated as skirts become not only fuller but fluffier. The modern dress, for evening at least, already presents difficulties for the traveler, and for her such lovely considerations as tulle do not exist, not only because of difficulties in packing, but because tulle is no sort of a sailor; cannot indeed even hold its head up before a salty breeze.

Taffetas, especially the charmingly blurred patterned ones are better travel companions while satins, velvets, and laces are ideal enroute.

While no longer new, jewel tinted laces in novelty mesh have sponsors in every port. Sports clothes for deck wear, and a fur selection which involves only sports furs are the choice of the experienced traveler.

RHINELAND CITIES LEAD IN NUMBER OF SALOONS

Coblentz, Dec. 15 (AP).—It is the Rhineland which in Germany harbors the cities having the greatest percentage of saloons. Heading this list of anti-prohibition towns in the city of Wipperfuerth in the Cologne district, which, with a population of 32,000, boasts of having a saloon for every 100 inhabitants.

Then follow Bonn with 160, Coblentz with 161, Mayence with 217 inhabitants per drinking shop. The latter city, however, is beaten by the non-Rhenish town of Fuerth in Bavaria with a saloon per every 214 inhabitants.

Taken by and large, however, Berlin with 200 citizens to every saloon is well supplied, though in the German metropolis it is to be remembered that restaurants and coffee houses as well as bars and wine shops are included in the statistics.

CHURCH ACTS TO RESCUE VALUABLE WORKS OF ART

Moulins, Dec. 15 (AP).—Art treasures of the church in this diocese have been placed under the supervision of a group of prominent churchmen and qualified lay artists. Even the churches themselves are to be controlled, from the point of view of repairs and transformations which affect valuable art pieces, by this committee.

The Bishop of Moulins has forbidden priests of his diocese to make any modifications or do any new building without the approval of the committee. They are also required to make any changes required by the committee in the interest of good taste and sacred art.

Normal Students Visit The Freeman

A class of 21 New Paltz Normal School students were shown how a daily newspaper is gotten out, when they went through The Freeman building on Thursday. The future teachers saw the actual making of a paper from the receiving of the news to the running off of the daily circulation on The Freeman press. The girls apparently were interested in all details explained to them by workmen and said they gained much by their visit. The class was also shown through the job department and Freeman bindery.

GERMANY WILL HONOR CHAMPION MOTHERS

Berlin, Dec. 15 (AP).—A cup and a saucer from the Prussian state porcelain factory will hereafter serve as a reward to the brave German mother who ushers her twelfth child into the world.

The ministry of health and welfare has decided that efficiency in child raising should be publicly rewarded, and has had a special cup and saucer, to be known as "mothers' cup", designed. Over 150 such cups are awaiting the completion of the first dozen in productive households. The ministry apparently figures generously, for during 1927 only eighty twelfth babies arrived.

BIG AUDIENCE SEES "CLARENCE" AT HIGH SCHOOL

Booth Tarkington's "Clarence," as presented by the Kingston High School Athletic Association at the high school Friday evening, was enjoyed by an audience that completely filled the auditorium. It was a very enthusiastic audience, too, and with reason, for under the direction of Miss Anne Byrne the young people of the cast did remarkably well. Besides the excellent acting, the audience fully appreciated the efficiency with which this clever and humorous play of Tarkington's was staged, there being no long waits between scenes. And the play was attractively staged.

The difficult part of "Clarence," ex-soldier, job-hunter, handy-man about the house, entomologist, specializing in beetles, distinguished young scientist according to "Who's Who," was just such an odd Dick on the stage—as one felt sure he would have been in real life—namely, Tarkington's creation—John Mohr did the character full justice even in the final role of lover.

Mrs. Martyn, the discreet and efficient private secretary of Mr. Wheeler (Miss Helen Pratt) was very official. Mr. Wheeler (Sherwood Lasher) the harassed business man, father and husband, quite enamored of the governess, was another part very well played. Miss Dolorita Rist made an realistically jealous wife and Walter Donnarumma played the part of Bobby Wheeler, the sister fighting, self-important, lovelorn son of the house as if he really was Bobby. As an upcoming, quarrelsome, love-sick, saucy kid sister, Cora Wheeler (Frances Finn) was a marked success.

Violet Pinney, the governess and the storm-center next in importance to Clarence, was pleasingly portrayed by Vivian Klothe.

The supporting characters of Della, the abused maid (Janet Story); Dinwiddie, the butler (Jerome Aley); Rosie, the parlor maid (Louise Toms); and Hubert Stem, the grass widower with whom the school girl, Cora, was infatuated (Robert Strickland), were all well played.

Between the second and third acts, Miss Byrne, who had so successfully coached the actors, was presented with a gift by the K. H. S. A. A. and a basket of flowers by the cast.

The play which was full of witty repartee and surprising situations was produced by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York city.

The audience greatly enjoyed the music by the High School Orchestra, L. H. Stine, director, before the play and during the intermission.

Dispelling Melancholy.

I once gave a lady two-and-twenty recipes against melancholy; one was a bright fire; another, to remember all the pleasant things said to and of her; another, to keep a box of sugar-plums on the chimney-piece, and a kettle simmering on the hob. How true it is that little pleasures often banish melancholy better than higher and more exalted objects.—Sydney Smith.

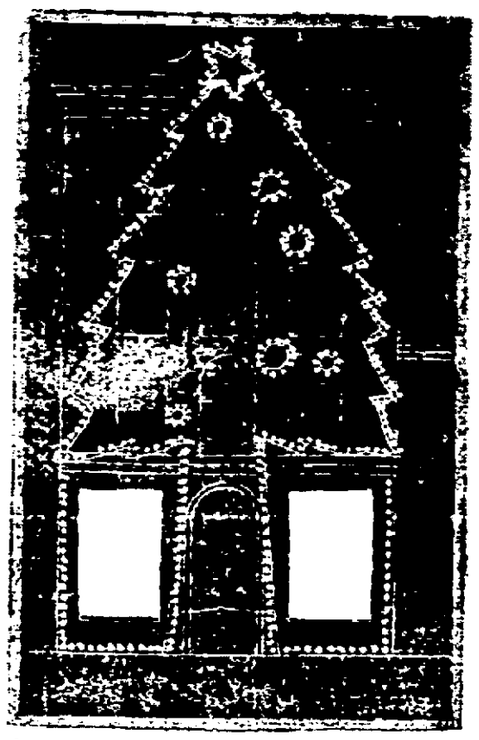
GREAT PREPARATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS LIGHTING



At a meeting last Monday of the Executive Committee of the Hudson Valley Electrical League, it was reported that the entire territory covered by the league is making extensive preparations for a Christmas Season of Light. It is a little early to report on entrants to the many residential contests being sponsored by the local leagues and local newspapers in many of the communities, but the indications are that there will be a much greater response this year than last. It was explained that this is in great part due to the fact that "Lighting Up for Christmas" is becoming a national event, and is being featured in most of the better known, nationally circulated magazines, and in the big city newspapers, particularly the Sunday paper supplements.

There is, however, a decided activity in community lighting as such, and in the preparation for effective commercial Christmas displays. It was reported that in Kingston the three business associations covering three separate parts of the city are competing with each other to present the most spectacular display for the holiday season. Such competition is stimulating and the results that will be produced will unquestionably be of great value to the community, and will be in effect a means of localizing the interest of the Christmas purchaser.

The Poughkeepsie League reports that many of the main stores have already been exquisitely decorated, and that several of the electrical contractor-dealers of the city are busy with bids on jobs covering Christmas decorative lighting. In Newburgh, as in Kingston, the commercial associations have agreed to create effective displays wherever possible. It is just a bit early, however, to give concrete examples for publication.

In Catskill and Beacon preparations are also being made to decorate the commercial establishments.

Campaign to Create Interest.

Through a cooperative effort the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation is giving its assistance in every possible way to further Christmas lighting in the home. The company's Home Service Bureaus in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Catskill and Beacon are equipped to explain the various types of decorative lighting which can be employed during the Christmas season, not only for exterior lighting but also for interior decorative effects. The local electrical leagues will soon actively campaign to create interest in the residential lighting contests and the local newspapers sponsoring the activity are planning publicity to the end that everyone shall know of the details.

It was brought up in the meeting that some confusion still exists in the minds of people as to the general principles which are involved in using light for decorative purposes. Everyone is urged to immediately fill out the enrollment coupon which is printed in this paper, and he or she will receive a booklet concerning decorative lighting which will be of great assistance in designing their own effects.

Almost everybody seems to have their own very definite ideas of how they are going to decorate their own particular home—or if they haven't any definite ideas when they start, they collect them very quickly once they have acquired a few strings of colored light bulbs.

A Few Suggestions.

For the benefit of those who are even yet not certain as to just how they will proceed to secure the best possible effects, the executive committee of the Hudson Valley Electrical League offers a few suggestions as to the ways in which very lovely effects may be gained:

Substitute a red lamp for the customary one in your entrance fixture, and put a wreath around it.

Place electric candles and Christmas wreaths in your windows.

Run colored lights through the trees and shrubbery on your grounds.

Place Christmas trees in tubs in the yard, and trim them with strings of colored lights.

Run strings of colored lights along your veranda.

Festoon strings of colored lights along the eaves of your house.

Place colored lights in your flower boxes.

Twine colored lights in wreaths or garlands and hang them in the windows or festoon them about the outside of the house.

Place illuminated stars over the doors or on the roof of your house.

Illuminate your Christmas trees, both those used indoors and those in the yard, with strings of tiny electric lights.

Place colored lights, one red and one green, in twin sockets, and place them in the windows.

Hang illuminated Christmas bells in the entry or in the windows.

With these suggestions as to ways in which to achieve an effective lighting display, you can go ahead and work out your own individual display. You may, of course, use any or all of these suggestions if you wish.

Above all, it is urged that every resident who desires to enter the Christmas Outdoor Lighting Contest send in the registration coupon as soon as possible.

JUNIOR CLUBS WILL BE ORGANIZED SUNDAY.

An invitation is extended to all Jewish girls between the ages of 9 and 12 inclusive to come to the Downtown Jewish Community Center at 2:30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, December 16. The purpose of this meeting will be to organize several Junior Clubs under the leadership of a number of older girls.

There will be clubs formed to suit the inclinations of all: Musical, Singing, Dramatic and Social Service Clubs. Also others if the girls desire them. This all depends on having a large amount of girls out Sunday to encourage the older girls, who have worked hard on this proposition, and who have formed many plans for the entertainment and benefit of their young friends.

Cottekill J. O. U. A. M. Dance.

Thursday evening, December 20, Cottekill Council, No. 168, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a dance at Gagne's Hall in Cottekill. Pardee and Allen will furnish music for both old modern dances.

DEAN OF WINDMILLS IS BELGIAN HEIRLOOM

Mons, Belgium, Dec. 15 (AP).—The oldest windmill in Europe has been discovered in the Belgian province of Hennegau. It is known as the Mauvinage Mill and under this name has received a classification by the Royal Society of Monuments.

The mill stands near the hamlet of Silly and dates back to 1180, ranking with the famous Tournai Beiffy. It was built atop a hill overlooking a quarry. As a result it threatens to collaspe and a group of archeologists have asked the government to preserve this witness of bygone centuries.

VILLAGERS COMMEMORATE LANDING OF BYRD PLANE

Ver-Sur-Mer, France, Dec. 15 (AP).—Citizens of this tiny Normandy village have put up a tablet on the walls of the cottage in which Commander Richard Byrd and his companions of the airplane "America," recuperated after their flight over the Atlantic.

The tablet reads: "Here was received and refreshed, on the morning of July 1, 1927, the crew of the airplane America which had just landed on the beach after its crossing of the Atlantic."

Rich Territory At Stake In Border Dispute

A territory rich in petroleum, more than 100,000 square miles in area, possession of which would give Bolivia a coveted outlet to the sea, is involved in the boundary dispute between that country and Paraguay. The map shows extent of the land. Dr. Jose P. Guggiari (right) is president of Paraguay, and Hernando Siles (upper center is chief executive of Bolivia. Below is a view of the government building in Asuncion, Paraguay.

A YANKEE ABROAD.

England's Humor In Its Courts By DeWitt MacKenzie.

London—Perhaps no other courts in the world produce so much humor as those in England. This is due in part to the judges' paternal participation in cases, but there also enters into it the sallies of the attorneys and the native wit or unconscious drollery of witnesses.

In this country a judge does not hesitate to question witnesses, or to express himself freely to attorneys. Frequently a case will enter a phase of three cornered badinage among the judge, an attorney and a witness. Again the bench will castigate a lawyer in no uncertain terms, the reproof frequently taking a satirical turn, as in the following exchange in the Westminister county court:

Attorney: "Defendant told my client to go to the infernal regions."

Judge Tobin: "He told him to go to hell, I suppose."

Attorney: "Yes."

Judge Tobin: "Well, why not say so? You seem to think I am a fool. It is trifling with the judge."

Mr. Justice Darling, now retired and a lord, established a great reputation as a wit, his cases being interspersed freely with jokes based on the testimony. It was Mr. Justice Daring—or possibly it was another of the high court judges—who, when a witness said he had gone into the elephant house at the zoo to use the telephone, leaned forward and solemnly remarked: "A trunk call, I presume."

Come with me for a hurried round of visits to a few of the courts and listen to some typical bits from cases:

Woman witness at Willesden Court: "I hardly like to repeat what I called him." Magistrate: "Don't consider me." Witness: "I'm not, sir. I'm thinking of the other ladies in the court."

Woman witness at Shoreditch Court: "I said nothing about the matter for five years." Judge Cluer: "A woman silent for five years!"

Marylebone magistrate: "No woman ever answered a question—or seldom."

Beggar accused of using abusive language to a pedestrian in Kent: "He gave me a farthing (half a cent) and then said my face was my fortune."

Nottingham solicitor: "What do you say is the worst thing you have ever done?" Man on stand: "Get married."

Wife, in Stratford Court, complaining of husband: "He has been away in an asylum for six months." Husband: "And it's much quieter there than at home."

Judge Cluer, at Shoreditch Court: "What is your husband's occupation?" Woman: "He supports me."

Barrister at Shoreditch Court: "You say your nerves have gone and that you have no feelings. But you jumped when tested by the doctor." Man on stand: "So would you if he stuck you in the back with a pin."

Workman, in disgust, when fined in Midland court for fighting: "And then they call this a country fit for 'eroes."

Barrister at Shoreditch court: "What makes you quarrel so much?" Woman on stand: "I'm Irish; she's not."

Willesden man, summoned for not keeping his dog under control: "He's just eaten a 40 shilling volume of Kipling. That will show you what sort of dog he is."

Workman, fined at Tottenham for drunkenness: "I could carry every part of my body but my legs. They hung behind me."

Man, fined at Marlborough street court for drunkenness: "I simply asked the policeman the difference between a Scotsman and a cocoanut, and told him you could get a drink out of a cocoanut."

Scotsman, at Westminster court: "The doctor certified me as drunk because I couldn't say 'Papa's pampered ponies.' I asked him to repeat after me a little Scotch, but he couldn't say it."

Society Notes of National Capital

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP).—The rush of Washington society takes on a varied phase with each turn: First a state dinner at the White House when the chief justice of the Supreme court and the associate justices and their wives are guests of honor; then a staid and dignified reception in the Pan-American Union building with the secretary of state and Mrs. Kellogg as hosts; receptions and dances of livelier turn each afternoon and evening of a week and then more dinner parties, more teas and luncheons and more dances.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, whose late husband was for some years ambassador at the Court of St. James, is here for her annual visit with Miss Mabel Boardman, and is being feted on every side. She attended the dinner given by the British ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard and many other events.

Her annual visit to Miss Mabel Boardman generally takes place during some special activity in the Red Cross Society, and is always the signal for continued entertainment. All of the matrons whom she presented at court during her husband's reign as United States ambassador in London give dinner parties for her.

The former ambassador to Peru, former Senator Miles Poindexter of the state of Washington, has come to the capital with Mrs. Poindexter. Mrs. Poindexter is a clever and fearless writer and was such a favorite while her husband was in the Senate that a constant ovation awaits her now. The Poindexters bought a house on N street near Connecticut avenue while he was in the Senate and it is there that they are holding court during their present visit.

At a bachelors' cotillion a few nights ago one witnessed a revival of the famous old bachelors of Washington when Senator Frederick H. Gillett, then single and a member of the Lower House of Congress; the late Major Archibald Butt, who went down with the Titanic, were among the leaders. At the revival, men of 70 danced with girls still in their teens and grandmothers led figures with youths in the early twenties. Miss Marion Jardine, the daughter of the secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Jardine, the only cabinet bud of the season, led the cotillion with one old enough to be her grandfather. There were statesmen like Senator Capper of Kansas, Senator King of Utah, Justice McReynolds of the Supreme court, and others on the floor, while the favors of fans, boas, vanity cases and what not created as much of a flurry with grandmothers as with the youngest of the buds.

Mrs. Coolidge is as busily engaged in buying and wrapping up Christmas packages as is the least official resident of the capital. She visits the shops, generally in the early morning hours, and is usually accompanied by her secretary, Miss Mary Randolph. Mrs. Coolidge takes things leisurely, stopping along at the various counters, choosing handkerchiefs at one, a purse or bag at another, selecting gay wools and silks for fancy work, and looking especially interested in the various knitted articles on show in the baby departments. She knits many sacques and pairs of booties for the babies of her friends and now and then an afghan of intricate pattern.

Many of her gifts to others are of the twice-blessed kind and come from the handiwork of disabled soldiers at Walter Reed, Mount Alto, and St. Elizabeth's or from the hospital for the blind near Baltimore. However, most of her gifts possess the double value of being manufactured by her own fingers.

Cabinet women are taking time off from their social duties to meet and talk over a gift for the first lady of the land. The custom of such a ceremony is an old one in the executive family, and Mrs. Taft carried with her to the Supreme court dinner at the White House a few nights ago the gold and jeweled lorgnette presented to her by the wives of her husband's cabinet. She has also a necklace and a jeweled bag presented in the same way. These gifts usually take on quite a personal aspect, like something to wear or carry, and are inscribed in a way to add to their historic value.

The ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Isabella Howard; the Canadian minister and Mrs. Massie and other diplomats who would be seriously affected by the death of King George have been kept in a nervous state, never knowing if they could carry on with their social programs. Every date is a tentative one, and Sir Esme and Lady Isabella recalled invitations for several things like the tea dance they had planned for the Hon. Anne Lytton-Milbanks, who is returning to England.

They attended the reception which the secretary of state and Mrs. Kellogg gave at the Pan-American Union building for the delegates to the Pan-American conference on conciliation and arbitration, a dinner given in their honor by Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, and went to the Townsend morning concert at the Mayflower. They arrived early and tarried as briefly as possible at each place.

The costumes of Lady Isabella are distinctive for their simple richness, her evening gowns being of heavy brocade satin in cream or white, and she always wears old laces and old-fashioned jewels.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge are going to dine with the secretary of war and Mrs. Davis for their next cabinet dinner. Mrs. Davis who has been ill and in Europe, returning expressly for the event. The vice president and Mrs. Dawes already have started dining out, and the vice president-elect, Senator Charles Curtis, has scarcely sat at his own private board since he returned here after the election. Democrats and Republicans alike are honoring him and always with him is his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, who sees that his muffler is turbed about his throat and that he is taken care of.

CHINESE WIDOWS WIN RIGHT TO WED AGAIN

Peking, Dec. 15 (AP).—Young widows are being encouraged to marry again by the authorities.

In the old days when the Son of Heaven sat on his Dragon Throne widows were rewarded for their vows of celibacy by seeing their names in stone tablets sanctioned by the emperor. That is entirely too old fashioned to suit the young Chinese of today.

Acts of filial piety verging on superstition and foolishness, such as the cutting of a piece of one's own flesh for a medecinal concoction, in the hope of curing the sickness of a parent, will not earn the commendation of the nationalists regime by any means, such practices being classed as unworthy of the people along with the ancient custom by which young widows refused to remarry.

Neither will the acts of girls declining to marry after the death of their fiances be regarded as commendable virtues, all of which has been set forth in a draft of regulations governing awards and official commendation of mertorious services submitted to the nationalists government council by the ministry of the interior.

An alarm was turned in from Box 35, about 7 o'clock Friday evening for a chimney fire at the home of Modesto Albertini, 461 Abeel street. There was no damage.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Violent fluctuations in the high priced specialties again featured the mixed price movement in today's stock market. The general list showed alternate periods of weakness and strength, reflecting, in some measure, the usual week-end readjustment of speculative accounts and the struggle of opposing speculative forces for control.

Trading was only moderate in volume, indicating an absence of any widespread public participation.

Airplane shares were buoyant, Wright and Curtiss each soaring about 11 points. Despite reports that the Radio Corporation-Victor Talking Machine merger was nearing completion, the stocks fluctuated in an erratic manner. Radio advanced 2 points to 352, broke to 335, rallied to 348½ and dropped back to 342. Victor Talking Machine advanced 2 points to 144½, slipped back to 137½, and then bobbed up and down just above the 140 level.

A. M. Byers dropped from an early high of 191¼ to 184½ and International Nickel dropped from its record high of 258½ to 248.

Greene Cananea Copper sold off nearly 4 points after yesterday's brisk advance, but scale buying was noted in the other coppers on recurrent rumors of a further advance in red metal prices within the next month. St. Joseph's lead advanced 3½ points to a new high at 56.

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal and Pittsburgh Coal advanced 8 and 6½ points respectively, to new highs. Johns Manville, Liquid Carbonic, Sears Roebuck, Goodyear, American International and Warner Brothers Pictures were among the score or so issues to sell down 2 to 3 points. U. S. Steel dropped to within a fraction of last week's low but General Motors, which broke through last week's low yesterday, received better support today.

Establishment of the highest price in several years by Chicago Great Western preferred featured the trading in the railroad shares.

Young Miss Must Look to Wardrobe

Debutante Season Demands Ample Attire for Various Social Affairs.

The debutante season is again with us and before the fair "deb" can face the world with the equanimity and poise which is her due she needs must look to her wardrobe. The winter season will be a long series of various social engagements and lovely new costumes, from sports clothes to evening attire, will be needed—and lots of them. And it must be remembered, observes a fashion writer in the Detroit News, that successful clothes are not those which attract attention for themselves alone, but those which express the wearer's personality. The social bud therefore is not only well dressed but her type is emphasized and her individuality stressed.

To begin, there are evening clothes and these perhaps will comprise the greater part of her wardrobe. Bouffant frocks of taffeta or satin that are longer in the back than the front and made of two contrasting colors. This style of frock is youthful and particularly adapted to the very feminine type of girl. A good looking model is fashioned of orchid satin with a deep, transparent flounce of tulle and huge bow and long ends of purple and rose velvet. Three shoulder flowers in orchid, purple and rose complete the quaint and charming picture. Another frock of the same order is made of chartreuse green taffeta, the irregular hem is scalloped and lined with pale rose taffeta. A shoulder bow of rose velvet and about a half dozen flat flowers with long trailers of the green and rose silk add the finishing touches.

Evening Gowns and Wraps.

A more sophisticated evening gown is fashioned of tiger lily (bright yellow) transparent velvet, the bodice trimmed with fagoting and the irregular hemline made distictive by a flounce of half-inch tucks, starting very narrow at one side and increasing in width until a depth of about twelve inches has been reached. An amber and crystal ornament adorns the waistline at one side and a long graceful scarf of tiger lily chiffon edged with tucked transparent velvet extends from one shoulder at the back of the frock down to the hem of the skirt.

Dahlia, a rich shade of purplish red, is the medium for another quite sophisticated-looking evening gown. Chiffon is the chosen material and the frock is devoid of trimming except for numerous drapes on the skirt and a wide gypsy girdle of figured chiffon in the dahlia shade, whose design is outlined in tiny amethysts.

Evening coats and wraps in the newest versions are of transparent velvet, heavily interlined and trimmed with huge collars and cuffs of fox or the velvet in intricate rows of shirring. The brilliant shades will be the most popular, so say the stylists who are catering to the popular deb.

Dinner gowns of several types can be included in the wardrobe of the fastidious debutante and the new cocktail frock is smart and youthful. Developed in transparent velvet with short metallic jackets, they are stunning. Another unique affair is composed of black transparent velvet and nude chiffon trimmed lavishly with cream lace. The long, coat-like cut of the velvet completely covers the chiffon part of the gown and can be removed to display an elusive-looking sleeveless frock.

For Afternoon Wear.

Colorful metallic two-piece dresses are just the thing for the afternoon tea or matinee, and these usually have a gold background with design in several bright colors. This material is so lovely in itself that no trimming is required—plaited skirt and odd-shaped jabot for the blouse are quite adequate trimming for good effect. Transparent velvet in the lovely wood-brown shades, black and the numerous tones of blue, trimmed with real lace and colored crystal ornaments fashion charming afternoon frocks and ensembles in the formal or informal styles.

The more tailored type of frock for street wear is fashioned of flat crepe and innumerable models to delight the debutante's heart are shown in the shops. An especially chic frock of black crepe has a wide pointed bertha collar made of two-inch wide strips of red, yellow, white and black crepe. Dark blue decorated with bands of lighter blue in several shades is a good looking and practical frock for general wear. Black flat crepe, whose bodice and skirt are made more complicated by numerous loose pieces of narrow plaiting and a plaited flounce of gold lame, is unusual and particularly suited to the girlish figure of the debutante. Printed velvet to simulate a large plaid effect is made perfectly plain in two-piece style with extremely long blouse and a wide green suede belt.

For sports wear, the particular "deb" will wear smart knitted two and three-piece frocks in blues, browns, reds or purple and orchid combinations. Trimmed with narrow bands of contrasting silk and narrow belt these sports frocks are perfections of youthfulness. More sophisticated frocks of this type are fashioned of tweed or covert cloth in smart mixtures. A most ravishing coat for general wear is made of unclipped camel's hair in beaver brown with Johnny collar, narrow cuffs and wide suede belt in brown.

While on the subject of coats, a seafoam green Lido cloth with large shawl collar and huge cuffs of natural lynx is charming for afternoon engagements. And, a stunning fur coat for the fair debutante is one of the new Viennese cape affairs made of Hudson seal and trimmed with narrow bands of fitch or white ermine. Logwood brown Alaskan seal is especially good for this winter and accentuates the present vogue for brown.

Choice in Millinery.

In hat lore, the beret, turban, tam and new Agnes bonnet are the leading shapes. Developed in soiled, felt and velvet in black, brown, autumn beige, all shades of blue—ranging from light to very dark blue—and cobblestone gray. The smart hat must follow the contour of the head and is usually devoid of trimming or has very little ornamentation. A new Paris fashion hat note says that gray is going to be a leading hat color for this winter, especially the blue-gray tones; although black ranks first in the choice of the ultra-smart woman. Soliel, a lovely velours-like hat material, is the most popular choice for the dressier type of hat and is preferred to velvet by many persons. Tiny, close-fitting hats for afternoon wear of gold lame or brilliantly colored metallic cloth give an air of clever sophistication to an otherwise youthful ensemble.

Individuality characterizes the new scarfs, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Sizes and shapes are more varied than ever before, and the colors vary from startlingly brilliant to indefinitely subdued combinations. Crepe de chine, flat crepe and chiffon are the popular materials, for they seem best adapted to giving soft folds and draped effects. The colors used include most of the shades seen in the newest frocks and suits, favoring petunia, wine tones, browns in various hues, some greens and vivid reds with touches of black. Striped designs are popular on the square and triangular shapes, while all-over vine and tropical foliage patterns are widely used on the large chiffon oblongs and squares.

One very unusual scarf that is particularly sought after by the younger set in New York is made of two squares attached so that one corner overlaps another. This scarf is of chiffon and each section is of a different color. For instance, poppy red is used with canary yellow and bright blue with either black or ivory. School colors, too, are combined, usually with some border or fancy corner motif in addition.

A handkerchief and scarf combination has been brought out in crepe de chine with stripe and dot designs and also in conventional floral patterns. The scarf is cut in a clear "V" shape so that it may be worn like a stoll with the point at the back. The small handkerchief may be tied about the wrist or tucked into coat or sweater pocket for decorative purposes.

Hard to Satisfy.

Those who are very difficult in choosing wives seem as if they would take none of nature's ready-made works, but want a woman manufactured particularly to their order.—Hawthorne.

Increasing Attention to the Value of Milk

America's eating habits are changing. From a corn pone-eating nation, we have turned into a nation of milk eaters.

A recent study of American diet of the present day and that of twenty-five years ago shows that we are eating 73.3 per cent less of corn meal—our national standby for 300 years—than we did then. We are also eating less of all bread, cake and the like, as is shown in the fact that the consumption of wheat flour products today is 12.7 per cent under what it was back in the '90s.

In contrast to this, we are now using 68 per cent more dairy products than we did in the days "way back when—." We eat more butter, drink more milk and consume enormous quantities of ice cream every day. We pamper our sweet tooth to the tune of a 43 per cent gain in the consumption of sugar in the same twenty-five years. We are also helping ourselves to bigger meat and lard portions by 6.4 per cent than did our parents.

A factor which undoubtedly explains a good bit of the tremendous popularity of dairy products in our own times is that we now take a lot of our milk in other ways than by drinking. Over 20,000,000 pounds of dry skim milk alone were used last year by makers of bread, bakery goods, biscuits, macaroni, prepared flours, sausage, ice cream, chocolates, cottage cheese and various other articles of human food to increase the health and nutritional qualities of the products. Increasing attention to the value of milk solids by the baking industry especially would appear to indicate that bread is due for a "come-back" to the popularity it enjoyed on the American table prior to the advent of the Twentieth century.

Felts and Velvets Now in Millinery Limelight

Even the simple felt hat may become dressy if it has the proper touch of trimming. A pompon of matching Hordium grass gives formality to a cloche of golden brown felt.

Pressed velvet is something comparatively new in the millinery world. A toque of brown velvet has a modernistic pattern pressed into it. The motif of self-fabric quills which appear on the right side of the hat is also a new note.

Rhinestones are much used for trimming on formal hats. A skull cap in velvet has the favored eyebrow line and bands of brilliants form tabs over the ears.

The evening cap of some sort of brilliant material is steadily increasing in favor. A smart style is fashioned entirely of silver bugle beads in an interesting swirling pattern.

Ocean's Treasures.

The ocean supplies important amounts of human food, of raw materials such as sharks' skins, oils from sea animals, furs, and materials obtainable from seaweed. If the human race were compelled to do so, it is probable that practically all our meat supplies could be obtained from the ocean, as well as a considerable part of our vegetable requirements.

New York State Must Guard Against Flu

Local People Urged to Prevent Epidemic Spreading as it did in 1918, when Half a Million Lives were Lost in this Country Alone.

TAKE NO CHANCES WITH COLDS

While there is no cause for alarm at this time, health authorities urge extra precaution—especially now, when grippy colds, pneumonia and influenza are so prevalent.

Colds Lead to "Flu"

Warning is given particularly against neglecting colds, which lower one's physical resistance and thus make the body easy prey for influenza, grip and pneumonia. Even a little cold, authorities say, is dangerous unless checked at once.

A safe plan is to check every cold at the start by a vigorous application of Vicks VapoRub, rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime.

Acts 2 Ways at Once

For hours after Vicks is applied, its ingredients, time-tested remedies, such as camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme, and turpentine, are released as vapors by the body-heat, and inhaled direct to the infected air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and pain.

Avoids "Dosing" Children

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 21 million jars are used yearly.

There are two kinds of Christmas presents—those we don't like and those we don't get.

"Y" Auxiliary Held Meeting

The December meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Friday afternoon. The devotions were in charge of Mrs. C. B. Ennis.

Mrs. Chester Hamilton reported $56 as the proceeds of the rummage sale and it was voted that a letter be written thanking Mr. Senig for the use of the room in which the sale was held as he not only donated the room but kept it warm.

The president, Mrs. Longyear, reported that the Auxiliary had served dinner to a conference of the Y. M. C. A. secretaries recently. She also reported that Mrs. I. W. Satterlee, who had taken charge of the junior boys' suppers last year, would be unable to continue this work and that she had appointed Mrs. Elbert Van Keuren as chairman in her place. Several volunteered to help and furnish cakes for these suppers.

A report was given of the Newburgh trip. Twenty-one members from the Kingston Auxiliary and twenty-five from the Poughkeepsie were entertained by the Newburgh Auxiliary on November 16, being treated to a chicken dinner and a fine musical program.

Mrs. George DuBois reported an average of 50 boys at the weekly Hi-Y suppers and that 90 had been served at the basketball supper.

A letter was read from Mrs. Robert Baylor thanking the Auxiliary for flowers sent during her illness.

Mrs. William Campbell reported that she had mended five table cloths and made five dish towels and some dish cloths.

The president asked each member to bring with her to the January meeting a dish towel as there is a shortage for kitchen use.

It was voted to make a Christmas gift to three employes of the Y. M. C. A. who have been especially helpful to the Auxiliary during the year.

One new member was received Mrs. Herman Witthoft of 254 Hasbrouck avenue, from the English Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Ramsey's Two Trips.

Mrs. Charles Ramsey gave a very instructive account of her two trips to Africa. She felt the real high spot of her second trip was their visit to Tristan Da Cunna, a small barren island about half way between South America and Africa. Only 45 people, descendants of some shipwrecked Portugese sailors, are living on the island. The only crop they can depend upon is potatoes which they eat in some form three times daily. They eat fish and the eggs of a large bird. Their homes are lit by candles. England sent Mr. and Mrs. Rogers there as missionaries. They established a school and church. After staying for two years he went home on a furlough and died, but recently other missionaries have been sent. Some of the men were entertained at dinner on the ship and were given supplies. They particularly asked for flour, tobacco and rat traps as the island is infested with rats. The Queen of England has sent them a radio.

The first place in Africa visited by Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey was Cape Town. The harbor was filled with ships, motor boats and pleasure craft. The main street looks much like any small city street with three and four story white marble buildings, churches and libraries, double-decked trolleys and even stores where one may purchase ice cream and sodas. Many Dutch live in long, low whitewashed farm houses, and raise grapes and make wine. At Port Elizabeth are many ostrich farms and feather markets, ostrich plumes being sold very reasonably. There are many snake farms also, where they extract the venom from poisonous snakes to make serum for treating snake bites.

Landings at ports are rather difficult, as there are no docks a tug boat is sent to take passengers from the ships. If the water is too rough for the tug boat, they have a large basket into which several passengers are locked and hoisted to shore. Mr. Ramsey's sister lives at Durbon in a brick bungalow. There are no closets in the home, everyone using wardrobes. In Durbon, the law requires that the native negroes be clothed, but outside the city one sees them clad mostly in beads. Rickshaw boys with head dress of feathers (denoting speed) and horns (denoting strength) pull one about the streets in small carts. The Zulu chiefs have as many wives as they can afford to buy. They are paid for in cows. If a man wants to marry a chief's daughter he must pay about 50 cows. The natives prefer stout women. A small thin woman may be bought for 5 or 10 cows, while a fleshy one would bring 15 or 20. Food and labor is very cheap but clothing high. One hundred pineapples may be purchased for 65 cents. They serve each person an entire pineapple. They are very ripe and eaten with a spoon. A large basket of oranges brings 25 cents and bananas are 5 cents a dozen but she paid $2 for a pair of hale thread stockings, 55 cents for a small tube of tooth paste and 75 cents for a cake of Pears soap. Travelers carry their own soap as it is not furnished at hotels. At Cairo Mrs. Ramsey ordered a cake of soap at a hotel and they charged her 60 cents. In Zanzibar, the streets are circular and one must have a guide or he will be lost. Ships sail from some ports when their cargo is ready regardless of the scheduled date. Victoria Falls are twice as high and wide as Niagara. One hires bed clothes on trains but has no mattress to sleep on. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Ramsey for her talk.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Samuel F. Jollie of North Main street is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Countryman, in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Cornelia Rampe is substituting in the law office of Raymond G. Cox during the absence of Mrs. Doyle, who has been ill.

Alderman Peter Beilman is able to be out, after having been confined to his home with lumbago.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenberger were in town for the funeral of the former's brother.

The Rev. and Mrs. T. H. E. Richards were Kingston callers on Tuesday.

Mrs. Lewis Gillespie entertained the T. F. W. C. Club Monday evening. The prizes were won by Mrs. Lee Robinson, Mrs. Julius Wolf and Mrs. Hugh Higgins.

Miss Louise Porter has returned to her home in Hasbrouck after spending some time with her aunt, Mrs. C. C. Low.

A regular meeting of Maratanza Council, Degree of Pocahontas, will be held Tuesday evening, December 18, at 8 o'clock. Election of officers and other important business. The annual Christmas tree celebration will be observed Thursday evening, December 20, at 8 o'clock. Each member may bring a guest.

Friday evening, December 7, the local high school boys played and won their first league basketball game of the season at Norbury Hall. Their opponents were the Woodridge High School boys, who recently joined the Catskill Mountain League to take the place of Roscoe, who withdrew at the close of last season owing to the inability of obtaining a place to play in at home.

Mrs. Irving Sider, who has been spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Smukler, expected to return to her home in New York city this week.

Mrs. H. T. Lauber has been spending some time with Mrs. Mary Hastie at Ulster Heights.

A sauerkraut supper will be held at the Lutheran Church on Tuesday evening, December 18, from 5 to 8 p. m. The menu will consist of relish, roast pork, mashed potatoes, sauerkraut, baked beans, rye bread, rolls, pie and coffee. Tickets 50 cents.

Mrs. Eliza Foster has been entertaining her daughter, Mrs. Harmon Wells, for a few days.

Mrs. Robert R. Graham and several friends of Middletown entertained 160 guests at the Goshen Inn, Wednesday afternoon.

Deyo W. Johnson had his tonsils removed by Dr. Jack Blumberg at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital, on Saturday last.

Mrs. L. E. Vernon is entertaining at bridge Saturday and Monday.

Irving Ostrander was in New York city on business last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Barnes of Walden have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Barnes of Backman avenue.

Keeping Cut Roses.

The life of cut roses can be prolonged, often to an extraordinary extent. If every night they are taken from their bowl or vase, a tiny bit snipped off the stalk, and then roughly scratched with the finger nail or one side of the scissors at intervals up the length, and then plunged right into a very deep pail of cold water. Even if the flowers themselves sometimes get under the water it does not matter.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kindness shown us during the sickness and at the time of the death of husband and father, Thomas F. Eigo. We feel especially grateful to the employes of Charles C. Schultz & Son.

(Signed)
MRS. MARGARET EIGO AND DAUGHTER.

POULTRY

FEED FOR WINTER EGG PRODUCTION

Maturity and Health Make for Strong Bodied Fowls.

One of the paramount problems at this time is the matter of feeding for maximum egg production through the winter, when egg prices are highest. Some mighty good hints on this question are supplied by R. L. Watkins, extension poultry specialist, Ames, in his bulletin for record flock keepers. His suggestions follow:

"Winter eggs are laid by well-matured pullets and healthy old hens which are comfortably housed and properly fed. Maturity and health make for a strong-bodied egg machine. Pullets, to lay large eggs steadily throughout the winter, must have proper body size and weight. Leghorns or other light breeds may be considered ready for a regular laying ration when three to three and one-fourth pounds in weight. Heavier breeds, such as Reds, Rocks and Wyandottes should weigh four and one-half to five pounds. Immature pullets must not be forced into egg production by feeding them on a regular laying ration.

"Comfort enables the bird to utilize feed in manufacturing eggs instead of using the energy thereby obtained to maintain body warmth. Feeds are the raw materials out of which hens build eggs.

"A well-balanced egg mash containing ground grains or grain by-products, protein concentrates in the form of meat and milk products; minerals in the form of bonemeal, salt and some grit; and often green food in the form of ground alfalfa must be kept available to hens and pullets if they are to lay any number of eggs during the winter months.

"Whole or cracked grains such as corn, oats, wheat and barley should be used in combination with a mash to maintain body weight and comfort. Body weight cannot be maintained during heavy egg production unless sufficient grain feeds are included in the ration. In a ration made up of mash and grain the mash feed contains most of the egg building material while the scratch grain contains most of the fat and heat-building material. Good poultry management requires that the birds consume sufficient mash to maintain their egg production, also that they eat sufficient grains to maintain body weight. Hens losing weight soon stop laying."

Cod Liver Oil Is Most Easily Given in Feed

The value of cod liver oil for poultry is summed up by one hen professor as follows: Stronger and healthier birds, prevention of leg weakness from heavy laying in late winter and spring, better looking egg shells, more and stronger chicks from the eggs hatched, and fewer blood spots in eggs.

Cod liver oil is most easily fed, this professor writes, in semi-solid buttermilk or cottage cheese. Or, he says, you can feed it with the scratch grain—a quart to 100 hens every week.

For a flock that size, his method is to mix about a teacupful of the oil with the scratch grain every other day. Keep this up until spring takes the flock outdoors again.

Guard Against Disease in Feeding Green Bone

Some butcher shops have installed bone grinders and sell ground green bone. This is an excellent feed when fed fresh, but poultry offal must not be ground in because of the danger of transmitting disease to the flock. This is especially true of tuberculosis. Whenever a supply of green bone is purchased it should be spread out thin in a cold room. If left in a paper sack even in a room below freezing the center of the mass will heat and spoil. Green bone cannot be successfully kept in large quantities unless thinly spread.

Poultry Notes

A fresh supply of water should be available to the hens at all times.

During extremely cold weather birds should be given more corn and grain than during mild weather.

Birds prefer grain feeds. The amount of mash consumed is determined by the amount of grain fed.

The mash is the egg food and the birds will like it and eat it as long as there is plenty for them in the hoppers.

Let your breeders out every day regardless of the kind of weather, as it is eggs with good, healthy germs that you are after.

* * *

Only by constant improvement can you hope to get in the A-1 class, and when you do you'll find a waiting market for every egg or baby chick you can produce.

K. H. S. Downs Port Jervis in League Contest

Local Varsity Wins DUSO League Game by the Score of 22 to 10—High School Faculty Wins First Game From Second Team, 14 to 10.

After taking two beatings at the hands of Ellenville High School varsity and the local DeMolay five in practice games, Kingston High School varsity basketball team proved superior to Port Jervis in its first DUSO League game of the season at the local school gym Friday afternoon. Kingston rolled up 22 points to 10 scored by the Port club. The Kingston boys led in point making throughout the contest but their harvest was in the last quarter.

In the preliminary game Kingston High School Faculty, playing its first game of the season, trimmed the K. H. S. Second team, 14-10. This game created considerable interest among the many students who crowded the gym.

The varsity five got the jump on their opponents in the first quarter. The locals didn't get such a big lead in the opening session but nevertheless their defensive work was splendid and the Port Jervis team was held to one field goal. At the end of the first period Kingston led, 5-2.

In the second quarter Kingston scored now and then but Port Jervis failed to find the hoop for a tally. Jones and Blackwell so far were the big point getters for the locals and Cuddeback was the only man that scored for the losers. Kingston held the ball most of the time in this quarter and they worked the leather very frequently under their basket only to shoot and have the ball roll around the hoop and drop off. If Kingston had made half their shots good the score would have been doubled without a doubt. When the half ended the score was 9 to 2 in favor of Kingston.

In the second half Kingston didn't let up scoring any for they added six more marks to their previous score while the Port team only found the hoop once from scrimmage and once from the fifteen-foot line. It was practically impossible to get the ball through Kingston's defense for "Herb" Clarke managed to knock the leather down every time his opponents would toss it at the hoop. It was this that kept the Maroon and White in front for when the third session was over the score was Kingston 11, Port Jervis 5.

Kingston Gets Big Lead.

It was in the last session that Kingston really found the hoop the way they should have in the earlier part of the game. "Herb" Clarke sunk one from the center of the floor, Planthaber scored a deuce and Jones and Blackwell by no means were mimssing shots. It was this sort of heavy firing that soon killed off Port Jervis's hopes of taking the lead. When the final whistle blew Kingston was far in the lead, 22 to 10.

Faculty Wins.

The Faculty took their first game of the season from the K. H. S. Seconds. It looked as though the second string men were going through another undefeated season when they beat the Scholastics in the first game, but all signs were blotted out when they stacked up against the school teachers to be defeated by four points. For a while it looked as though the Seconds were going to give the Faculty the short end of the score but as the game went on the Faculty stepped in front and took the contest, 14 to 10.

Highland Beat Monroe Quintet

The most interesting basketball contest played at Highland so far this season was the tilt won by Highland Hose Company quintet from the celebrated Monroe outfit Friday night on Smith's Hall court. The Ulster county boys edged their way throughout the first three quarters by a slight lead which they increased in the fourth session to take the tilt, 28-23.

Pete Bruck of this city, who is captain of the Highland team, played a good guard game by holding Franks, stellar forward of the Monroe outfit to one field shot, this was registered in the last minute of play. Maury McDermott, well known to local baseball fans, proved as proficient on the court as on the diamond by copping the scoring honors of the evening. He contributed 12 to Highland's score.

CHANDLER TEAM PLAYS OSSINING AT "Y" TONIGHT

The Chandlers and Ossining All-Stars will clash at the Y. M. C. A. court tonight at 8 o'clock. The regular Chandler line-up will be used for the game and it is planned to have every man on the roster enter the contest.

CARDINAL SCOUT IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Expects to Finish One, Two, Three for Ten Seasons.

In the opinion of Charley Barrett, chief of the Cardinal scouts, the team has just begun to win National league pennants. Charley is enthusiastic about the outlook for many years to come.

"We will be one, two, three for the next ten years at least," Charley declared. "We have the men coming along who will keep us at the top, when the stars of the present team have faded."

"But, Charley," queried a friend, "how about the pitching? You know that Haines, Alexander and Mitchell are well along in years and Sherdel isn't so young any more. What have you got coming up in the way of replacements?"

"As to the first part of the question," answered Barrett, "I can't agree that Alexander and Haines are nearly through. A pitcher is never through until he loses his fast one. And a pitcher like Alexander will be great for four or five years as a relief man after he is through as a starter because Pete has a wonderful head on him.

"And Haines! Why he has just started. His fast ball is better than ever and his knuckle ball makes him a great pitcher. Sherdel will go along for some time.

"Then look what Bill Hallahan did in a recent game between Houston and Birmingham. He shut the Barons out with two hits, struck out eleven batters and didn't walk one! The last feat is the significant one. Hallahan is such a great natural pitcher that he doesn't even bother to pitch to a batter's weakness. All he has to do is get the ball over the plate with his stuff on it. Heretofore that is what Bill hasn't been able to do but apparently he is learning control. He will be a great pitcher for us, probably next year.

"So when the great ones of the present Cardinal outfit pass on we will have men like Hallahan to slip into the vacant places and keep our pitching staff at a high level.

"Then we have fine players for other positions 'down on the farms.' Who they are and what they can do will be shown when it is necessary."

The fact that a great many of the players on the Cardinals and on their minor league clubs are with the St. Louis organization is due to the ability of Barnett, who is probably one of the best known men connected with baseball.

Klein Is a Wonder

Charlie Klein, outfielder, came to the Phillies from the Fort Wayne club of the Central league about the middle of last season, and his batting and fielding in 64 games created much comment over the circuit. He hit at the impressive mark of .360 and contributed 11 home runs and 13 doubles during his brief stay in the game. Klein's rise to big league fame was sensational. He was playing his first season as a professional when secured by the Phillies.

Otto Williams Is Signed as Coach of the Blues

Otto Williams, former coach with the St. Louis club of the National league and last year manager of the St. Louis Browns' Western association "farm" at Muskogee, Okla., has signed as coach with the Kansas City Blues of the American association for 1929.

Otto's release by the Browns may mean that Muskogee will be deserted next season by the St. Louis club. The team lost heavily this year, running behind from $18,000 to $20,000.

Appointment of Billy Southworth as manager of the National league champions, the St. Louis Cardinals, is announced by President Sam Breadon. He succeeds Bill McKechnie. McKechnie, who led the 1928 team to a league championship, will pilot the Rochester club next season.

Bobby Dobbs Is Still Boxing at Age of 60

Bobby Dobbs probably lasted longer than any other fighter listed in the record books, according to Fight Stories Magazine. He has engaged in ring warfare for thirty-five years and at the age of sixty still boxes every day in the gymnasium with youngsters a third his years. Bob Fitzsimmons was in the ring for thirty years, and Frank Craig, the Harlem coffee cooler, as long.

Dobbs, slim and lean, still has some of his old speed. It was a treat to watch him with sluggers like Bobby Barrett. The old fellow tried to teach the Clifton Heights redhead something of his boxing skill, but never succeeded. Barrett was just a slugger and could have stopped Dobbs any time he landed on him; but in their short training bouts he never could land.

Frankie Genaro Wins on Foul

Detroit, Dec. 15 (AP).—Frankie Genaro, the National Boxing Commission flyweight champion, won on a foul by Steve Rocco, Canadian champion, in the second round of a 10-round championship match here last night.

Rocco's chance at Genaro's crown was wrecked when he dropped Genaro with a left hook that landed low. Genaro was thumping at Rocco's body when suddenly he cried out and fell to the canvas. Referee McClelland declared Genaro the winner on an unintentional foul.

Genaro was on the aggressive at the start of the bout and caused considerable excitement when he dove head first through the ropes after missing a hard right swing in the first round. Neither fighter had gained any advantage when the foul ended the bout.

CANZONERI AND SINGER FIGHT DRAW

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—With a sizzling ten round draw between Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, and Al Singer, Bronx idol, to send them home in a good humor, 20,804 fans jammed Madison Square Garden last night for an all-star boxing show.

It was a fast and furious battle the whole way with Canzoneri's effective work at close quarters gaining the approving eye of experts. Singer, however, put up a beautiful boxing exhibition that kept him in the running despite the superior experience and ring generalship of the former titleholder.

Lew Kersh, another local favorite, was outpointed in ten rounds by Tommy Grogan, the Omaha, Neb., slugger. It was a fast and hard-fought bout but Grogan's harder punching gained him the verdict.

Bruce Flowers, negro lightweight of New Rochelle, N. Y., defeated Jimmy Goodrich, of Buffalo, N. Y., in the first ten-rounder.

Carpino Lone Kingston Winner

Johnny Carpino was the only Kingstonian to bring home a scalp from the brace of National Guard bouts held at the Newburgh armory Friday night. He decisively trimmed Stanley Reid in the last six-rounder on the card, while Roy Van Buren and Gene Painter lost to their respective opponents, Ray Halverson and Frankie LePera, in closely fought contests. Joe Myers was not permitted to enter the ring because absence from drills made him ineligible to fight.

The Carpino-Reid fight kept the Newburgh fans interested over the period of six rounds that the boys spent in the roped arena. The Newburgher did considerable rushing in the first round, but answered the bell for the second in a more cautious manner. He found that the Kingston boy's blows were to be respected and kept a considerable distance from Carpino for the greater part of the setto. Johnny kept after him and climaxed the lead he piled up with a knockdown in the sixth round. Reid took nine counts shortly after which the bell ended the mixup that was awarded Carpino.

Mickey McVeigh of Newburgh and Charlie Johnson of New York city, fought in the feature bout. Mickey Haley, one of the cleverest boxers in the Hudson valley, handed out a terrible lacing to Jimmy Bardin in a six rounder that lived up to advance cards which heralded it as a special stellar attraction. Both contestants were Newburgh boys. In the four-round curtain raiser Kid McNaughton of Newburgh knocked out Jimmy Morrison of the 369th Infantry. The battle went less than two rounds.

WHY

Silver Quarter Is Called "Two Bits."

"Bit" has been applied in England to coins for centuries. It was one time thieves' slang for money in general. Thomas Dekker so used the term in "A Knight's Conjuring: Jests to Make You Merie," which was first printed in 1607. Later "bit" came to be applied to any small silver coin. Even yet the British use it in such phrases as "sixpenny bit." Our use of the term in "two bits," meaning a quarter of a dollar, originated in the West Indies, especially Jamaica, where "bit" was originally applied to small silver coins forming fractions of the Spanish dollar. It was applied specifically to the real, which was equal to one-eighth of the dollar then in use. Examples of the term in that sense date back to the Seventeenth century. When the Spanish dollar disappeared from circulation in the United States, a quarter was called two bits, and a half dollar four bits. Twelve cents and a half is never called a bit, although in some sections of the country fifteen cents is called a long bit, and ten cents is a short bit.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Why Sleeping in Open Promotes Good Health

Contrary to old-fashioned ideas sleeping in the open is not harmful and night air is now held to be invigorating. When the sun sets and night falls night air is the only kind obtainable and it is considered far better have plenty of night air than to breathe foul or stale air. Night air acts as a tonic, says Dr. Harvey Wiley, authority on health. One of the sins of civilization, he claims, is the invention of the house. If there were no houses there would be no tuberculosis, he asserts. Tuberculosis, however, is not the only disease the house is responsible for. Cutting off the proper supply of fresh air reduces the vitality of the body to such an extent that not only tuberculosis germs, but germs of other infectious diseases may more rapidly take hold. This problem can be best handled, he says, by making use of sleeping porches. Every house, whether in the crowded city or in the country, has one or more porches. These porches can easily and should be fitted out as sleeping porches.

Why Variation in Wind.

The weather bureau says that owing to the friction at the surface of the earth, the air near the ground always has less velocity than the air a few hundred feet above it. In the daytime this faster air is mixed up with the surface air by convection induced by surface heating. In this way the surface air is given a greater velocity than it would have if not mixed with the upper and faster wind. At night, when there is no surface heating and no convection, the upper wind, except when quite strong, glides over the lower air, which is held relatively quiet by surface friction. When the upper winds are very streng they mix with the lower air by mechanical turbulence and the surface wind remains as strong by night as by day.

Why Anomaly of Frost.

Frost forms only when the temperature of the object on which it occurs, and the immediately adjacent air, is at or below the freezing point, 32 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature of the grass, for instance, especially in low spots and on still, clear nights, may be 32 degrees Fahrenheit, or lower, while that of the air a little distance away, and 20 to 30 feet higher, may be 40 degrees Fahrenheit, or over. This explains the anomaly of frost at 40 degrees Fahrenheit. It was 40 degrees Fahrenheit, say, where the thermometer was, but not where the frost was.

Why We Say "Piping Hot."

"Piping hot" is a relic of the ancient custom of a baker blowing his pipe in the village street as a signal to his customers that his bread was at that moment hot from the oven. The baker was evidently an unpopular member of the community in those far-off days, for in the minds of those of a superstitious nature he was synonymous with the devil! So we get the term "baker's dozen." The devil's dozen—13—was the number of witches supposed to gather in evil conclave at set periods, and the spiteful minds of the ill-willed readily substituted "baker" for "devil."

Why Mirage Forms.

A mirage is due to conditions existing in the atmosphere. As a result of deviation of the rays of light caused by refraction and reflection, objects seen with the eye appear in unusual positions and often multiple or are inverted. One cause of a mirage in the desert is the diminution of the density of the air near the surface of the earth, often produced by the radiation of heat, the denser stratum being thus placed above instead of, as is usually the case, below the rarer.

Why Bubble Is Round.

A soap bubble is round because it has a surface tension which causes equal pressure in all directions. The soap bubble is covered with a film, and the tendency of liquids covered by such a film is to assume a spherical shape.

Why Known as "Pirate."

The Latin word "pirata" means to "attack or assault," and the Italian "pirateare" means to "rob by sea." The English word is derived from these.

Smart Lady.

An Atchison woman always has spending money. Twice a week she threatens to go back to her mother, and her husband always gives her enough money for train fare.—Atchison Globe.

LAKE KATRINE.

Lake Katrine, Dec. 15.—The P.-T. A. held an interesting meeting at the school-house on Monday evening. Owing to ill health Mrs. Ten Broeck was unable to be present. First Vice President Mrs. H. Keator presided. Mrs. F. Brink also was absent and Mrs. Forde acted as secretary. That our committees are all active is proven by the following reports: Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Hoff each a new member; Mrs. Hooky assisted Mrs. D. Parrish and Mrs. Frank Ennist presented Mrs. Forde with 23 home-made scrap books for her use in the primary department, for which she was very grateful. Mrs. Gates reported $25.27 proceeds from the card party; Mrs. Keator $13, Mrs. Shiels $4.29, making $69.47 up to date, contributed to the book fund. Mrs. Ennist was empowered to purchase the new dictionary at once. The need for kitchen utensils was suggested and Mrs. G. Roosa was directed to make a list and solicit from the members the articles needed and brought in at the next meeting. Mrs. Myron Boice read an article on recipes that were suitable to be served in thermos bottles, giving a child one hot serving, where there was no suitable equipment in schools for preparing this dish. The need for a door spring was brought to our attention and Pratt Boice offered to get same and put it on. The trustees have had installed a new anti-freeze pump and sink which will be a great convenience. We are hoping to have Prof. Van Ingen of the high school at the next meeting, who will give his address on his trip to Alaska. The teachers are preparing a Christmas program for the evening of December 21 at the school-house. Mrs. Pratt Boice, Mrs. Gates, Mrs. Frank Ennist and Mrs. G. Roosa were appointed a committee to purchase candy and toys to give the children at this entertainment.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—More and more evidence is coming to light about the big pack Santa will take to Wall street. One stock exchange firm is to pay employes bonuses totaling $1,000,000. It is figured that commissions on stock transactions during the year if averaged up would mean nearly $400,000 for each member of the Exchange.

Washington—There is a story that Daniel Webster, gesturing with one hand in a pocket, offered to pay the national debt. An unidentified woman has telephoned the Bolivian minister repeatedly offering to buy the territory in dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay. The last time she called he told his secretary to tell her he had gone to war.

New York—Mary Garden is back, both blue and red, blue because she had to pay some customs duties. And she wore a red suit, a red hat and red slippers. Her sun baths have kept her weight down to 129.

Reno—The boys at the University of Nevada want no taint of professionalism in their football. They have rejected an offer of merchants for $10,000 to be used for athletic scholarships and for the salary of a coach.

New York—It's a wife's privilege to fish in her husband's pockets. Justice Ford of the state Supreme court so commented during testimony in a separation case. He has yet to decide whether discovery by the same wife of marks of another woman's rouged lips on her husband's collar warrants a separation.

Washington—By order of Comptroller General McCarl, Arthur G. Froe, district recorder of deeds, must increase his own pay $400. The comptroller usually finds unwarranted expenditure. In this case he has detected failure to spend as Congress provided.

New York—A $3,000,000 battle of "Abie's Irish Rose" and "The Cohans and Kellys" is due for trial in Federal court next week. Anne Nichols is suing Universal Pictures, alleging infringement. The defendants deny and assert that "Abie's Irish Rose" was originally "They Should Worry".

Los Angeles—Noah Beery, screen villain, thinks one's partner should not be permitted to make a mistake. And so he intends to do all in his power to prevent his wife, his partner for 18 years, who doesn't realize what a mistake she is making", from getting a divorce.

New York—Four contributions totaling $195 have been received by the New York Times from readers for Mrs. Etta Mae Miller of Lansing, Mich., who is subject to life imprisonment as a fourth offender under the state prohibition laws.

London—Merry Christmas from John Bull to Uncle Sam. John has just paid $94,200,000 on his debt, reducing it to $4,453,000,000.

Danger in Eloquence.

"Eloquence," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "is a gift of the gods, to be used with discretion. It causes an error of statement to be remembered beyond the power even of eloquence to correct it."—Washington Star.

LAKE KATRINE GRANGE HELD INTERESTING MEETING

Lake Katrine, Dec. 15—At the Grange meeting held on Tuesday evening there were many disappointed in not seeing the state master, but all felt he had sent an admirable substitute in the worthy overseer, Raymond Cooper. He is a man of rare personality and charm and served as state lecturer before being elected overseer. Many expressed the wish that they might see him some time in the office of state master and complimented him on the impressive manner in which he gave the installation ritual. He was ably assisted by Worthy Deputy Weaver and Mrs. Ralph Harcourt, Mrs. Harry Sutton, Mrs. C. Jenkins and Miss Irene Sickler of Clintondale. The officers installed were: Master, David Kieffer; overseer, Harry Davis; lecturer, by proxy, Mrs. A. Roosa; steward, Tracey Munson; assistant, Herbert Brink; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Miller; secretary, Mrs. Donald Parrish; gatekeeper, LeRoy Crosby; Ceres, Mrs. Mildred Ducker; Pomona, Miss Stella Ketterson, Flora, Mrs. J. Miller; lady assistant steward, Miss Florence Dimler. After the installation Worthy Master Kieffer called on Mr. Cooper, A. Bogert, Deputy Weaver and the newly elected officers of Asbury for a few words. Mr. Cooper prefaced his remarks by reciting a poem called "Vision." The others responded briefly. Including the 36 guests from Asbury, 96 people were served a bounteous repast under the direction of Mrs. Paul Lachmann. The tables looked very festive with their red crepe paper decorations, with Christmas greens and red candles. Miss Dorothy Alpright presided at the piano.

U. S. ARTISTS FIND FAVOR IN GERMANY

Berlin, Dec. 15. (AP).—American artists are finding favor in increasing numbers with the critics and public of Berlin.

Eva Gauthier, a favorite with Berlin concert goers, this year again surprised by the internationalism of her vocal program. Singing in French, German, Italian, or Spanish apparently causes her no more difficulty than singing in her native English. Her interpretive powers are especially outstanding.

Ralph Lawton, her American accompanist, was lauded not only because of the delicacy of his accompaniments, but also for his ability as a soloist when, a few days later, he gave a piano recital of his own.

Eleanor Spencer of Chicago found a full and appreciative house when she reached Berlin in the course of a tour which took her to the German cities of Munich, Frankfort-on-Main, Hamburg, Dresden, and Leipsig.

Leonard Shorr, youngest of the American pianists concertizing in Germany, has won the Bechstein Stipend at the Staatliche Hochschule fuer Musik, where he is doing post-graduate work. The stipend is a much coveted prize.

Alexander Brailovski, New York pianist, was acclaimed by the critics as one of the best interpreters of Chopin of our day. His rendition of Liszt's works also came in for special praise.

BOY SCOUTS OF TURKEY WILL JOURNEY TO ITALY

Angora, Turkey, Dec. 15 (AP).—Turkish boy scouts will make their first visit to foreign lands next spring when they embark for Italy in response to the invitation just received from Mussolini. The Duce's invitation follows the recent visit to Constantinople of 1,000 junior Fascists among whom figured his two sons, Benito and Vittorio.

The Turkish government will choose for the trip to Italy the 1,000 boy scouts, who have stood first in their classes in schools throughout the land this year.

Early Use of Skates.

Skating is undoubtedly of great antiquity, as shown by early carvings. The early development of this "art" was due principally to the Norsemen, Swedes, Danes, Finns and Dutch.
